

RUMORED TAFT WILL VETO THE MEASURE

TARIFF BILL SAID NOT TO BE SATISFACTORY TO THE PRESIDENT.

CANADIAN TREATY UP

Senate Recedes From Its Former Position Today—Other Congressional News.

Washington, Aug. 3.—Some of the President's supporters in the senate today declared they had information that the president would veto every one of the tariff bills now under consideration. The cotton, wool, sugar, and steel bills are nearly ready to go to the White House for signature.

Receives Today.
By a vote of 33 to 28 the senate today agrees to recede from its Canadian reciprocity repeal amendment on the steel bill. This leaves the bill approved by both houses.

It will go to the president at once. The progressives voting with the democrats to recede were: Senators Brainerd, Clark, Crawford, La Follette, Poindexter and Works.

Makes New Bill.
An entirely new bill based on Senator Cullerton's measure to forbid campaign contributions to an election to which a president, senator or a representative is to be voted for and making it unlawful for any person other than a candidate to contribute more than $5,000 to such an election was prepared today and will be recommended to the senate by the committee on privileges and elections.

Class Commodities.
Class and commodities tariffs of middle western railways which would materially increase rates on shipments from Alton, Ill., and other points to Henderson and Owensboro, Ky., and beyond, were suspended today by the interstate commerce commission until February 18, 1913. An inquiry into the proposed advances is in progress.

Makes Comment.
London, Aug. 3.—Commenting on the resolution introduced by Senator Lodge in the United States senate yesterday in reference to the Monroe Doctrine, the Pall Mall Gazette today speaks strongly. It says:

Would Be Easier.
"International relations would be made easier, and the Monroe Doctrine more acceptable to other powers of the opportunity were taken to reaffirm the determination of the United States, to speak no further territorial expansion and to avoid the same kind of colorable acquisition of places convenient for naval bases which the senate declares it would view with concern on the part of other nations."

Agree on Provisions.
Washington, Aug. 3.—The house today agreed to the conference report on the wool tariff revision bill by a vote of 160 to 62. Only one democrat representative, Ashbrook, of Ohio voted against its adoption while 24 republicans joined with the democrats in the affirmative vote. The measure now will go to the president.

Will Drop Case.
The committee of representatives which took testimony against Federal Judge Cornelius Hanford at Seattle today recommended to the house judiciary committee that the impeachment proceedings be dropped and that President Taft accept the judge's resignation. The president has delayed action on the resignation to await the committee's action.

Can Adjourn Soon.
Leaders of both houses said today that congress could adjourn in a week or ten days if the Archibald impeachment case were not set for immediate trial. The conference on the sundry civil bill where the life of the tariff board and other disputed questions are involved, is one of the few important appropriation fights remaining.

Postoffice Bill.
The postoffice appropriation bill was again before the senate today. The parcels post provision had not been reached at the end of last night's session and was expected to take up many hours of debate.

WILSON WILL MAKE NO STUMP SPEECHES

Democratic Candidate Announces He Will Not Stump Country Nor Indulge in Personalities.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Seagirt, Aug. 3.—Notwithstanding what other presidential candidates may do, Gov. Wilson will not stump the country in his campaign for the presidency and will indulge in no personalities.

The governor declared today that he would make no extensive tours or back platform speeches, but would follow a program of scheduled addresses which has yet to be arranged by the national campaign committee. These engagements would be based he added on calls from various states and his addresses would treat of campaign subjects and not persons.

"Then you will make such speeches as the campaign committee thinks necessary for you to make," he was asked by newspaper men.

"O yes," he said with a smile, "if I agree with 'em."

It was suggested that perhaps Mr. Bryan might make a number of speeches in behalf of the democratic nominee. "Yes I hope so," he replied, "but there has been no formal program arranged."

CALIFORNIA "BULL MOOSERS" ARRIVED

In Chicago Today For Convention, Bringing Large Delegation Headed by Governor Johnson.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, Aug. 3.—The largest delegation to reach the city during the forenoon was that of California, headed by Governor Herman Johnson. The Californians brought with them the same two state banners used at the republican national convention in June. One of these was still surmounted by the little gilt Teddy Bear, which was so often in the van of the Roosevelt parades and demonstrations in the Coliseum. It was said that a miniature bull moose might have supplanted the bear, but for the fact that the latter is the accepted California state emblem. The Californians paraded through the hotel with their band playing familiar convention tunes. The bandstand was interrupted by cheers for Teddy and for the big bull moose.

It will not be known until Monday just how many delegates will attend the convention. The call for the gathering allotted delegates to the different states according to their representation in congress. Many states will split their votes and instead of the 500 odd delegates first provided for, the committee of arrangements expects more than 1,000.

HAVE WAGE DISPUTE IN BOTTLE INDUSTRY

Question Of General Strike Rests Upon Deliberations Of Blowers' Union Convention.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Olean, N. Y., Aug. 3.—The annual convention of the Blowers' Association of America, which will begin its sessions here Monday, promises to be the most important gathering ever held by that organization. Upon the result of the convention's deliberations depends the question of peace or war in the bottle industry. The manufacturers have notified the workmen of a proposed reduction of 40 per cent in wages. It is regarded as certain that the blowers' convention will repudiate the manufacturers' proposition. In anticipation of a general strike, the manufacturers are said to have placed rush orders for all automatic bottle-making machines that can be turned out during the summer months. These machines, each of which does the work of five men, are the bone of contention in the trade. Eventually they may force the bottle blower out of work entirely.

THIRD PARTY SLATE IS BEING SETTLED IN ILLINOIS TODAY

Little Opposition to Launching of Full Bull Moose Ticket in State Field This Fall Seen At Chicago.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, Aug. 3.—Little doubt existed among the 700 delegates who are here for the third party convention early today, but that a full state ticket would be placed in the field. Walter Clyde Jones, one of the progressive leaders claimed to have interviewed the down state delegates as they arrived and declared he found only 82 of them flatly instructed against a third state ticket.

There had been reports that 300 delegates would be on hand to fight for the interests of Governor Deenen and this gave impetus to a story that these delegates would bolt the convention if a man was to be nominated to oppose him.

Charles E. Merriam, was named as temporary chairman and was prepared on taking the gavel to make a determined stand in his speech for the third party movement. Dean Francis M. Macomber, it was said, would be permanent chairman.

A slate has been prepared and it was the belief that the candidates thereon would be the nominees of the convention. The slate follows:
For governor, Frank H. Funk, Bloomington; lieutenant governor, W. B. Clark, Galena; for attorney general, Fletcher Dobyns, Chicago; for secretary of state, J. H. Jayne of Monmouth; for state treasurer, Phillip Decker of Murphysboro; for state auditor, Edward Winter of Danville; for United States senator, Brigadier General James H. Campbell. Trustees of the university of Illinois, were also to be nominated.

The platform it was said would among other things declare for women suffrage, the initiative and referendum, an eight hour day for men and women alike, engaged in pursuits classed as labor.

SHOTS EXCHANGED IN EAST EL PASO

Fifty Shots Fired Last Night Between U. S. Soldiers and Unknown Parties Side.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
El Paso, Aug. 3.—About fifty shots were exchanged between United States soldiers and unidentified men from the Mexican side of the river last night in East El Paso. No one was hit. There were no arrests. Three shots were first fired from the Mexican side striking a house belonging to C. H. Cole. After the first three or four shots were heard the soldiers on guard on the American side opened fire towards Mexico. The bullets then came faster from the Mexican side, one of them striking A. D. Mortimer's house. "The houses of Messrs. Curtis, Williams and Yorkers near the river were struck by bullets."

At this moment a posse composed of Sheriff P. J. Edwards and Deputy Sheriff started a search of the thick brush growing in the old river bed. No trace of the men who fired from the Mexican side could be found. The police officers returning leaving further investigation to the soldiers. It was the opinion of the residents of that section that the firing had been done by Mexican rebels to draw the attention of the American soldiers so that a quantity of ammunition could be smuggled across the river at another point.

As everybody knows or soon will know his preemptory demand has from the beginning been that with respect to the regular nominee for governor. That nominee must declare for him or he will nominate another candidate who will. This was true in my case and I refused."

POPE ENTERS TENTH YEAR OF HIS REIGN

Nine Years Ago Pope Pius X Was Invested Head of Roman Catholic Church.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Rome, August 3.—It will be nine years tomorrow since the memorable Sunday on which Giuseppe Sarto, who had been Patriarch of Venice, was crowned Pontifex Maximus of the Catholic Church and invested with the insignia of his office in the great Basilica of St. Peter, filled to its capacity with interested spectators from all parts of the globe. Owing to the extremely delicate condition of the Pope's health, which compelled him some time ago reluctantly to follow the urgent advice of his physicians and to suspend all public audiences and functions, there will be no public observance of the anniversary.

The fact that tomorrow Pius X. will enter upon the tenth year of his reign as supreme pontiff partakes of additional importance inasmuch as it disproves the superstitious prediction that Pope Pius, who was nine years a parish priest, nine years a bishop and nine years a patriarch, would not be pope more than nine years. Superstitions concerning the probable duration of the reign of popes have always been quite common, but almost invariably their fallacy was shown by the actual facts. During the reign of Pius IX. the superstitious belief was quite general that he would not be pope more than twenty-five years, two months and seven days, that is, not longer than St. Peter reigned after the establishment of the papal see in Rome. Yet Pius IX. disproved the superstitious theory by reigning 31 years, 7 months and 21 days.

There have been but three popes who have reigned more than twenty-five years. The first was St. Peter, who spent the first seven years of his pontificate at Antioch and then came to Rome where he reigned an additional twenty-five years, two months and seven days before he died a martyr. Next to him came Pius IX., who reigned thirty-one years, 7 months and 21 days and then came Leo XIII., who was 25 years and 10 months on the papal throne. Six popes have reigned more than 23 years; eleven more than 20 years; 300 less than one year and nine less than one month. Of the first 30 popes, 29 were martyrs, except St. Dionysius, who was the 25th. The total number of popes who died martyrs was 23.

In view of the precarious condition of the Pope's health and the possibility that he may not survive his anniversary by more than a few months, speculation is rife as to his probable recesses in the pontificate. Of course there is nothing definite to form the basis of a forecast, but one thing seems to be tolerably certain—that the next Pope will not be an American. In fact it seems to be generally understood that the successor of Pius X. is to be an Italian. The tremendous growth and development of the Roman Catholic Church in the United States had given rise to the hope that sooner or later one of the American Cardinals would be selected for the papacy. That this may eventually come, but at present that hope is undoubtedly premature.

In the selection of a candidate for the pontificate many things have to be considered and so intricate are the conditions which have their bearing upon the choice that few men outside of the church; in fact, outside of the highest hierarchy of the church, can fully realize and appreciate them. A great body, especially a religious one, is necessarily conservative and the Catholic church is no exception. The thing has not yet come of selecting a pontiff from outside of Italy. But, even if the church were ready to permit this, the Catholic Church is not wholly free in its selection of supreme pontiff; hence the agitation, not yet ended by any means, for the sovereignty of the Pope. The Vatican Palace itself, it must be remembered, belongs to the Italian government, and it is exceedingly doubtful that the Italian Government would consent to the occupation of the Vatican by a Pope who is an American citizen, an Englishman, an Austrian, a Frenchman or a Spaniard.

The choice of a successor to Pius X. being thus narrowed down to the Italian contingent of the Sacred College, it becomes comparatively simple to mention the six cardinals who are considered the strongest candidates for the papacy. First comes the lead candidate, Cardinal Rampolla, who was cardinal at the last conclave. Cardinal De Lai and Cardinal Maffi and next in the line Cardinal Ferrata, Cardinal Richelmy, archbishop of Turin, and Cardinal Gasparri. It is the general belief in well informed circles that one of these six is practically sure to be selected for the honor.

Her resignation was tendered about two months ago, but was not acted on until yesterday. Mrs. Best gives up her work because of ill-health. The severing of her connection with the library is a source of regret to many of her acquaintances. Her services for the library have been painstaking and conscientious and were carried on zealously through the long period she was in its employ. She has not been actively engaged at the library since last March, and Miss Grace Estes has been keeping up her work meanwhile.

TUESDAY NEXT IS REGISTRATION DAY

All Voters Must Appear in Person and Register According to New Law—Can Not Copy Names.

Tuesday next is registration day for the fall primaries and elections, and all voters must appear in person to register as a state statute prohibits the practice of copying the names of voters from the old books. Voters should take care that their names and street addresses are recorded accurately and thus avoid the inconvenience of swearing out an affidavit signed by two freeholders at election time. The board will be in session at the various polling places from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m.

LIBRARIAN'S REPORT PRESENTED TO BOARD

NOTES INCREASED CIRCULATION OF BOOKS OVER RECORDS OF LAST YEAR.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

Judge Charles Fifield Succeeds to President's Chair—Receive Resignation of Mrs. Best.

An increase in the total circulation of books for home use of 1,380 volumes over the circulation of the previous year is noted in the annual report of Miss Lydia Kinsley, librarian of the public library, submitted to the Library Board at its monthly meeting yesterday afternoon. The total circulation for the year was 51,370, and the total adult circulation 31,806, a gain of 967 over last year's figures. The report of Miss Kinsley was considered the best they had ever received, and it was decided to publish 250 of the reports to be sent to other libraries and given to interested citizens.

It was with much regret that the Board accepted the resignation of Miss Kinsley, who has been tendered a good position by the Lane Medical Library at San Francisco, and also that of Mrs. Best, who leaves after thirty-five years of continuous service because of her ill-health. Miss Fifield was engaged as substitute librarian until a successor. Miss Kinsley should be appointed, Miss Agnes Buckmaster, who has had charge of the children's library was appointed assistant librarian. This position will include her former work, with an increase in salary.

A committee of three members—Mrs. A. P. Lovejoy, H. C. Buell, and Roy Cummings—was appointed to investigate the employment of an assistant in the position made vacant by the resignation of Mrs. Best.

Judge Charles Fifield was re-elected president of the Board, and Mrs. A. P. Lovejoy, vice president. Fred A. Capelle was elected temporary secretary to serve until a librarian should be appointed.

The book committee membership was not changed. Mrs. J. O. Rexford, H. C. Buell, Charles Fifield, and Fred Capelle, still continuing to serve. The finance committee remains the same except for the addition of the name of Roy Cummings to those of Mrs. W. T. Sherer, Horace McElroy, and C. J. Hayes. Mrs. A. P. Lovejoy, Charles S. Cleland, and H. W. McNamara were re-elected to the building committee. After the bills for the last month had been read and approved the meeting was adjourned.

Report of Miss Kinsley. Slow but steady growth in the library and the use of the facilities is offered in the report by Miss Kinsley. The library has made special efforts to do its best work for the city; to supplement the public school education; to be an aid to the teacher; a bureau of information to the business man; a source of enlightening influence to the community as a whole, and to increase the efficiency of the library and reach more of the people of the city many modes of publicity have been used.

Slow but steady growth in the library and the use of the facilities is offered in the report by Miss Kinsley. The reference work is steadily increasing but not sufficient aid is received to carry out the work to its best possibilities. In the winter an assistant is needed to devote the entire afternoon to this work. In February two students from the Wisconsin Library school under the supervision of Miss Imogene Hazeltine, preceptress of the school, rearranged and shelf-listed all the books in the reference department, having classified and put in order 666 books. The students also made a card accession record of the bound magazines.

The library now subscribes to sixty-two magazines and four newspapers, with eight duplicate magazines, and three duplicate newspapers. Five newspapers and four magazines are received as gifts.

The work with the woman's clubs goes steadily on during the season and the librarian reserves on special shelves for each organization and books they desire to use. During the year the following organizations held their regular meetings in Library hall: Twentieth Century club, Schumann club, Athena Class, Art League, Woman's History club, Rock County Political Equality League, Summer Club of Household Economics.

The most valuable gift presented the library during the year was the five light Corinthian electric street lamp, donated by Mrs. Stanley Smith, and placed directly in front of the library. Other gifts of books, pictures, flowers, and magazines were made by Mrs. A. F. Hall, Mrs. Nellie Dunwiddie, Mrs. C. E. Auld, Mrs. O. D. Bates, Mrs. E. Ruger, Miss Maria Gibbs, Mrs. C. W. Reeder, Edward Amerpohl, Miss Isabel Smith, Mrs. Hunt, Miss Mary Mount, Miss Francis Ingle, and Mrs. P. T. Fitchett.

The Sunday opening of the library from January 1 to June 1 was not much patronized, nor was the men's reading room after warm weather began.

Some of the improvements during the year have been the re-decoration of the children's room, new Tungsten lights in the aisles, new clock, rubber matting on stairs, and the installation of a Bell telephone.

The needs of the library set forth are more catalog cases, more stack room, and a means of reaching the people on the outskirts of the service.

Reminiscences of the Civil War--Details of Gen. Forrest's Raid

Further details of the raid made by General Forrest's cavalry into Memphis, then a Union town, in 1864, are given herewith, in part of an account of the fighting there, taken from the Memphis Daily Bulletin of August 24, 1864, owned by S. C. Burnham of this city, and from which the account published in last Saturday's paper was taken. Especial mention is made in the article printed this week of the part taken in the fighting between the "hundred day men" enlisted on the Union side, and the horsemen under Forrest's command.

Taken entirely by surprise early in the morning, the raw recruits behaved themselves most creditably in what was for many the first sharp engagement in which they had taken part. The fortieth Wisconsin Infantry, of which Mr. Burnham was a member, aided in putting the rebels to flight and showing the spirit of veterans in attacking their opponents. Their position just outside the city, however, made it impossible for them to take a more active part and the brunt of the fighting fell on the Eighth Iowa, of whom mention is made in the following article.

The Hundred Day Regiments. "In our hurried accounts of the rebel raid on Sunday, we failed to do full justice to the hundred day regiments. The 4th Brigade is commanded by Col. Buttrick, of the 39th Wisconsin Infantry—a gallant soldier—who was formerly Lieutenant Colonel of the 24th, and participated prominently in the marches and engagements of the Army of the Cumberland. The 39th and 41st Infantry and 7th battery compose the brigade. A portion of the Thirty-ninth were picked out for the Memphis raid when the rebels dashed in, under the command of Lieut. Clements of Company A, who stood his ground bravely. Out of them ten on picket, three were killed, one wounded, and three taken prisoners.

"There has been so much indiscriminate firing on and near the picket line, that but little attention was paid to the alarm then, it was only when stragglers from the 7th battery reported their camp surprised and the men mostly prisoners, that the 39th and 41st sprang to arms.

"Colonel Buttrick, hearing that the rebels were marching down the Hernando road, and also on Carr Avenue, ordered his brigade to fall back towards the fort, fearing a flank movement in his position. The brigade then fell back for a short time, but again advanced to the Hernando road, where they found the cotton field. The 39th were ordered in line on the left, and the 41st on the right, when ten companies of the 39th, under command of Captains Madison and Lawrence, were thrown out as skirmishers, the others advancing beyond the rebel battery, which was stationed close to the road. The 39th, 40th and 41st lay in the cotton field—the shot and shell flying over and around them thick and fast. The men behaved nobly—not a man flinching from his post. Major Ginty of the 39th, says he was never so proud of Wisconsin boys as when they stood for the first time under fire, confronting rebel hosts. The 39th and 41st were then ordered forward, the left of the former resting on the Hernando road, and advanced until the order was countermanded, when they returned and took positions on the crest of a hill on the east of the road and near the 7th battery. The 40th marched also and proceeded across Cane creek in pursuit of the rebels, before the order to retreat came. Lieutenant Colonel Crane, of the 39th, Colonel Ray of the 40th, and Col. Goodwin of the 41st commanded their regiments and did well.

What It Amounted To. "The late daring raid the rebels into Memphis, could scarcely have been prevented by any precautions, and resulting as it did, our chief cause of chagrin is that the rebel force was not entirely captured before it escaped from our lines. The stubborn bravery of companies C and F, of the 3th Iowa, held in check and actually drove the whole rebel force before it. True, it lost almost as many as all the other regiments together, but it was able to drive the rebels, and if it could do this much it was unfortunate that in the emergency it was found impossible to collect the whole of our forces in time to capture the raiders.

"True, the raid was a most complete failure. It did not capture any Major General. It secured no supplies, and its losses were altogether heavier than ours. The reports of casualties in the different companies have not yet been officially made—nor have there been carefully and complete estimates of the losses of the rebel raiders, but the following may be regarded as a fair approximation by a competent gentleman who has facilities for forming an opinion.

Federal Losses. Rebel Losses.
15 ..... killed ..... 50
50 ..... wounded ..... 190
140 ..... missing ..... 30
205 ..... Total ..... 220

"We estimate the Federals missing, by capture, at one hundred and forty, but to this should perhaps be added eighty-nine citizens who were carried off.

The loss of the rebels in killed and wounded was vastly disproportionate to ours, but while we have not captured over thirty or forty rebels altogether, the raiders had 229 prisoners on Sunday night. The rebels carried off about 100 horses, but they lost a great many by overwork and by having them shot.

If this raid had been successful so as to have captured a couple of Generals, it would have had a very encouraging effect on the rebel armies in Virginia and Georgia.

If the raiders had secured supplies, it would, perhaps, have compensated them for the loss of men. If they had destroyed Federal stores, it might have been matter for secessionist gratulations; but to gain nothing, except a score or two of horses, to destroy nothing, and to lose twice as many killed and wounded as the Federal soldiers, is a very sorry record for rebel raiders. Worse for the rebels than this is the fact that this raid has demonstrated to the satisfaction of everybody that the much vaunted bravery of Forrest's men is nothing but a big game of brag. The 2500 rebel cavalry could ride over Unionists in the South, they could capture our videttes, they could, by a sudden dash, kill our pickets and burst into the city, and they could somehow get out again without suffering much greater loss than we did, and the boys of Company C, still lower in their shirt-tails, repulsed the rebel advance, and later in the morning, with Company I, drove the whole 2500 of Forrest's braves before them.

Forrest and his Cavalry will no longer be a bugaboo to anybody. The chances are that Forrest will now attempt, with reinforcements from the Trans-Mississippi Department, to face Gen. Smith's forces."

They the patrons of Myers Theatre are assured by Mr. Rotnour the manager, that one of the very best and most laughable comedy dramas that was ever attempted will be presented. The part of the "Vagabond" is taken for a character, true to life, brim full of comedy and not overdrawn. The principal comedy in the play is that of an Irish gardner who is running for Justice of the Peace, he is elected and this one character alone represents one of the very best comedy parts that was ever written in a play. The bill offers pure wholesome comedy, laughable situations, and sensational climaxes. The leap for life, at the climax of the second act is a scene long to be remembered. A host of polite vaudeville will be introduced between acts. Scale of prices are popular.

MAKE A HIT WITH THE BOSS

Have a Good Up-to-Date Dictionary on Your Desk—Will be an Asset.

What would "the boss" say if he should see a New Websterian 1912 Dictionary, illustrated, lying on your desk some morning?

No matter what he would say, you know that he would think: "There's a young person worth watching for promotion."

Dictionary users are recognized everywhere as progressive as well as careful and conservative people.

Your employer cannot help noticing this dictionary if you buy one; its handsome appearance invariably attracts attention.

Men with the Dictionary habit are in demand.

The Dictionary is not the most thrilling of books—Bill Nye said that its plot was slightly disconnected—but it is one of the most interesting to those who know how to use it.

The Gazette is not in competition with those who merely aim to amuse, and books picturing the exploits of newspaper comedians sold at a small price cannot be compared in commercial literary value to the lesson taught by the successful educational campaign in distributing dictionaries.

A dictionary is like a gun in Texas; you may be so well educated that you do not think you need it, but when you do need it you will need it badly.

The truth of this statement is self-evident to everyone who attempts to use the English language.

Provide yourself with abundance of ammunition for every word skirmish, duel or battle.

The trouble started when McGraw declared that there have never been but three spitball marvels—Jack Chesbro, Ed Walsh and Russell Ford. Then Walsh and Ford, in a loud voice, cried in a loud voice that the Cub twirlers, Laverne and Cheney, were just as great as the men mentioned by McGraw. Chance didn't mention that McGraw O'Toole of Pittsburgh, and so that caused Manager Clarke to enter into the argument. Clarke says O'Toole is the best spitball heaver of all time.

HARNESS RACES ARE BECOMING POPULAR

Secretary Putnam of the Janesville Park Association Has Many Entries for Coming Race Meets.

If the number of advance entries for the coming three days' race meet under the auspices of the Janesville Park association, August 14, 15 and 16, received by Secretary Putnam of the association is any criterion, Janesville will entertain as large a number of horsemen as in any days of old when Janesville was one of the horsemen's Meccas. From all parts of the state and northern Illinois inquiries have been received and entry blanks asked for indicating a large interest in the coming affairs. The four thousand dollars in purses hung up are sufficient to attract some of the best entries in the vicinity and it is expected that it will prove a huge success.

Charles Schaller, who attended the matinee races at Madison yesterday in which his horse, "Charley Howe," was entered, stated today that the interest in harness races appeared to be on the increase and that he heard many horse owners planned to have entries in the coming races. Mr. Schaller's horse was entered in the 2:18 pace, which had so many entries that two races were run, the purse being divided. Unfortunately, Charley Howe drew No. 9 and was at a decided disadvantage. The time was a trifle better than 2:14 in the heat, showing that speed counts these days.

Secretary Putnam is busy at the track preparing for the accommodation of the horses expected. There have been many changes and the grounds are being put in fine shape. The Bowler City band will furnish the music for the three days and there will be four races each afternoon.

Blueberries are getting much better and they are also very plentiful. Plums are having a very heavy demand this year and they are very good. The prices of the market for today are as follows:

Nothing new appears on local market today.

There is not anything new in the way of fruits and vegetables on the market this morning and the prices remain the same. The peaches which came on the market a short time ago are still of a very good quality, and they are very abundant. Gooseberries which have been so very fine this season are just about all gone. Blueberries are getting much better and they are also very plentiful. Plums are having a very heavy demand this year and they are very good. The prices of the market for today are as follows:

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

The makers of all kinds of machinery recognize the fact that the best of material and workmanship are necessary to permanent success. It is not enough to know that the finished product will do the work and carry the load for which it is intended, for more than this is often required, and unless reserved forces meet exceptional demands, the machine is pronounced a failure.

Visit the engine room of a great ocean liner, when the sea is calm and the good ship is making twenty-five miles an hour, with no apparent effort, and you admire the ease with which the great wheels revolve. But go again, a few hours later, when the storm is on, and wind and waves combine to retard her progress, and you notice that every stoker is stripped to the waist and working like a beaver to supply the extra power demanded to maintain speed, while the great engines throb like a thing of life.

That's the test of reserve power and endurance for which the builder must provide. Many of the accidents which are charged to carelessness are due to weak construction. When a steering gear goes wrong it is never the fault of the man at the wheel.

What is true of inanimate machinery is true in a larger sense of the human mechanism. The God who created us provided power of endurance for the unusual strain to which we are often subjected, but He expected us to conserve this power for cases of emergency.

The years before middle life is reached are so full of vitality that there seems no limit to endurance, and to the man of average ambition, no task seems too great and no burden too heavy. But these are the years which shorten the span of life and often produce premature decay.

A young man who had been running an engine for ten years, was caught in a snow blockade last winter, and for thirty-six hours was obliged to stay in his cab without sleep. This was a tax on the reserve forces of nature, which in time will demand a penalty.

The most of us are not railroad engineers and yet the inclination is to weaken vitality by drawing too freely on the reserve forces. The man who works on scheduled time, using the other sixteen for rest and recreation, seldom dies from over-work, and yet the list of mortality is as great among this class of men, as any other.

It isn't work that kills, in the labor world. Neither is it worry, for the man without a care has no occasion to worry. The saloon around the corner takes a liberal toll from this class of men, and the habits of life have much to do with the length of existence. Many people in all ranks of life bolt their food as though their teeth were in their stomachs, and then wonder why they have indigestion.

The American people are good liver, and they never lived so well as they are doing today, in spite of the fact that we have complained so long about the high cost of living that it has become a habit.

The government is conducting seventeen hotels and boarding houses down in the canal zone, for the benefit of the great army of employees engaged in the work. Meals are furnished at from nine to thirty cents each. A gentleman who recently came from there, published the menu for the thirty-cent meals. The fare was as good as can be found in any $2.00 hotel in the north, and the diners would cost a dollar in any city restaurant. The cost of high living is what ails us, depleting not only our pocketbooks, but our systems.

The notion is more or less popular that "knowledge is power," but knowledge without application is as powerless as steam unapplied. The average mind is less industrious than the body, and that is the reason why so many of us do the most of our work with our hands.

The mind, like every other organ, can only be developed through exercise. It has a wonderful capacity for storage, and was intended to carry a surplus of knowledge, sufficient for every emergency. The text book and the school supply the foundation and experience fills the structure.

Two or three months ago a young man in the employ of one of the great packing houses was called to the office of the superintendent for consultation. The company was not satisfied with their heating and power system, and claimed that the fifteen boilers in use were extravagant and inefficient.

The boy was a graduate of the Armour Institute, with a head full of technical knowledge, backed by sufficient experience to give him confidence. When shown the plan and asked if he could improve the system, he said he didn't know but thought he could if given time to study it.

"Take all the time you want and report," was the reply. A month later he was in the office again with plans complete which called for taking out eight of the boilers. The superintendent was skeptical but finally consented. Today the plant is running with half the fuel and more power.

That's reserved forces of the mind, called into action to meet an emergency—the sort of applied knowledge that paid the company, and sent the boy a long stride toward the front. American industries, by the way, owe much of their prosperity to this kind of practical knowledge.

Have you ever noticed the blanched cheeks and clenched fists of a man in anger because of an insult, and then have you noticed the color come back to his face and the fingers relax, as he turned away without speaking a word?

That's an exhibition of the reserved forces of a heart under control—one of the choice virtues which all of us do not possess. Impulse prompted a sharp answer, but the still small voice said, "No! forget it; he will be sorry enough when he stops to think." And the voice prevailed.

We may not all enjoy a strong physical organization and our minds may be slow to grasp and analyze many things which we would like to know, but the heart, the fountain of life is ours to make of it what we will. It is possible to keep it pure and wholesome and so thoroughly equipped with reserved power that the life will be steady and an inspiration to the little circle where our lot is cast.

SCRIPTURE

DEUTERONOMY 2:5-14.

Thou shalt also consider in thine heart, that as a man chasteneth his son, so the Lord thy God chasteneth thee.

Therefore thou shalt keep the commandments of the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways, and to fear him.

For the Lord thy God bringeth thee into a good land, a land of brooks of water, of fountains and depths that spring out of valleys and hills:

A land of wheat, and barley, and vines, and fig trees, and pomegranates; a land of olive oil, and honey;

A land wherein thou shalt eat bread without scarceness, thou shalt not lack anything in it: a land whose stones are iron, and out of whose hills thou mayest dig brass.

When thou hast eaten and art full, then thou shalt bless the Lord thy God for the good land which he hath given thee.

Beware that thou forget not the Lord thy God, in not keeping his commandments, and his judgments, and his statutes, which I command thee this day:

lest when thou hast eaten and art full, and hast built goodly houses, and dwelt therein;

And when thy herds and thy flocks multiply, and thy silver and thy gold is multiplied, and all that thou hast is multiplied;

Then thine heart be lifted up, and thou forget the Lord thy God, which brought thee forth out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage.

WILLIAM SMITH WAS INJURED AT MONROE

Local Engineer on St. Paul Road Injured About Chest and Back When Caught Between Drawbars.

William Smith of this city, an engineer in the employ of the St. Paul railroad, was painfully and perhaps seriously injured internally about the left side of his chest and back about five o'clock yesterday afternoon at Monroe, when he was caught between the drawbars of the engine and first car of the train on which he was working. Mr. Smith was running the engine on the east-bound way freight yesterday afternoon when the drawbar on the car next to the engine pulled out. As the train was already a little behind schedule, he pulled the engine up a little ways from the first car and with his fireman and a brakeman, started to fix the broken drawbar. While they were at work, the engine started to back down the slight incline on which it was standing, toward the train, and caught Mr. Smith. The brakeman and fireman were uninjured and the fireman hurried up into the cab of the engine and started it, so as to release Mr. Smith. He was taken immediately to the Monroe hospital and given medical care, but thus far the physicians have been unable to determine just how badly he is injured. His injuries are very painful and several hypodermic injections were necessary to relieve the pain. Mrs. Smith went to Monroe today to see her husband, and Charles Swan, foreman of the local roundhouse, was also there to see the injured man.

FORMER RESIDENT CALLED BY DEATH

J. M. Bray Passes Away at His Home in Nampa, Idaho, After Long Illness.

News of the death of J. M. Bray, a former resident of Janesville and father of Mrs. J. M. Connors of this city, at his home in Nampa, Idaho, on Saturday last has been received. Mr. Bray was associated in business with the late John Watson in Janesville, for many years, leaving for the west some twenty-five years ago and making his home since 1902 in Nampa. He was known throughout the western country as a contractor of prominence and built seven miles of the famous Royal Gorge railroad and also thirty miles of railroad in Old Mexico, since leaving Janesville. While a resident of Wisconsin he did extensive contracts for the Northwestern and other roads.

In speaking of his death the Nampa paper says: "After a long illness from Bright's disease which he resisted with the vigor and determination characteristic of the man in all his work, J. M. Bray passed away at his home in Nampa, July 27th."

J. M. Bray has been a recognized factor in the upbuilding of Nampa and for four years was a member of the city government, being elected as councilman the last time when every other man on the ticket with him was defeated. J. M. Bray was born in 1840 in Pennsylvania. At the early age of 18 he began to follow his life work of contracting. After a successful business career of thirty years in the east, Mr. Bray came in 1890 to Boise, Idaho, where he soon became prominent as a building contractor. Three years later he moved to Nampa where he was a leading business man until the time of his death. Mr. Bray became well known throughout the state through his connection with the Phyllis canal of which he did the construction. J. M. Bray is survived by his wife and five children, Mrs. J. M. Connors of Janesville, Wis., Mrs. Joseph Skelly, Hancock, Mich., Katherine G. and Anna R. Bray, of Chicago, and son G. R. Bray of Nampa.

The funeral services were held on Monday last and the interment was at the Nampa cemetery.

Mrs. J. M. Connors has been with her father since his first serious attack several months ago and Mr. Connors leaves on Monday to join her and bring her back.

Mrs. Marie A. Sparham.

Mrs. Marie A. Sparham passed away this morning after an illness of several weeks duration at the summer home of her daughter, Mrs. William F. Sayles, at Cedar Lake. The remains will be brought to Janesville for interment arriving Sunday morning on an early train. Mrs. Sparham has for many years made her home with her daughter, Mrs. W. F. Sayles, 622 Court street and the funeral will be held from her late residence. Notice of the funeral will be given later.

SOO RAILROAD ASKS WHY DISCRIMINATIONS ARE MADE.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chippewa Falls, Wis., Aug. 2.—Re-argued for the recent friction between President Pennington of the Soo roads and the state railroad commission have been divulged. The disagreement arose over the committee's attitude toward Mr. Pennington when he asked why no other railroad in the state was compelled to comply with the law enacted by the 1911 legislature, requiring all railways operating in this state to place electric head lights on their locomotives. President Pennington says his road has spent millions of dollars in this state in the past two years to make the old Wisconsin Central line a first class road.

AUTOMATIC PHONES TO BE INSTALLED TO TEST SERVICE

Model Exchange Will be Paiced in Charles Putnam's Store For General Use.

In order to test the efficiency of the automatic telephone and obtain the opinion of the general public as to the advisability of fitting out the Rock County Telephone company with such instruments, General Manager Richard Valentine of that company, has made arrangements for the installation of a model exchange in Putnam's store on South Main street. With this exchange will be connected several sets of automatic phones so that the general public can inspect and make tests of the service.

A demonstrator will be in the city for the next week to show operation by Monday evening.

If it proves satisfactory to its subscribers the Rock County company plans to install a complete system in their offices and will doubtless immediately start construction of their proposed building, for which plans have been drawn and the property purchased. Mr. Valentine and several stockholders and directors of the company have visited many of the cities having automatic systems in the past few months and thought best to have a public test here before making any definite decision regarding the matter. When the exchange is in working order the public will be invited to make thorough tests of the system.

BOY SCOUTS RETURN FROM HIKE TO AFTON

Returned This Afternoon About One O'clock From Bird-viewing Trip—Hike to Milton on Monday.

Scoutmaster Jacke and several of the boy scouts who accompanied him on the trip to Afton, returned to this city this afternoon about a quarter to one o'clock, after a most enjoyable outing. The Scouts left here yesterday morning about half past ten o'clock, taking the road on the east side of the river to Afton and going over the Afton bridge. They reached that place about three o'clock and after eating, pitched their camp in the woods on the Clark farm, just north of the village. A stream in that creek that runs through the town was enjoyed later in the afternoon. The tents were pitched in a circle about a large fire, with the open ends toward the fire, so that the heat was reflected into the tents and the boys were kept warm throughout the night. They broke camp about half past nine o'clock this morning and returned at a leisurely pace over the lower road into this city.

One of the purposes of the trip was to study birds and out of a list of forty-two species common to this region, seventeen varieties were observed. For this reason, the progress of the marchers was slower than it would otherwise have been. The boys also saw a fox this morning as they were returning to this city, about three miles out in the country from here on the west side of the river. Varieties of birds observed were: robin, bluebird, cowbird, goldfinch, spotted kingfisher, red-headed woodpecker, towhee, woodpecker, flicker or chickadee, mourning dove, blue jay, purple grackle, crossbill, tree swallow, barn swallow, warblers, brown thrasher (several varieties of each), cat birds, wrens, sand piper, cedar waxwing and other birds.

Hike to Milton.
On Monday morning the Scouts will hike to Milton and Milton Junction. Scoutmaster Jacke and the scouts will leave the hall at half past seven o'clock Monday morning. Boys who intend to go are requested to bring with them enough money and food to last three days. The boys will return to this city some time Wednesday.

Big Aerial Sensation Harlem Park Aug. 4th to 11th

The Management of Harlem Park Rockford, Begins Tomorrow Its Booming of the Park Season.

Feeling that the many new features at Rockford's popular resort this year would keep up the interest for the first part of the season, the Management postponed until last week the installation of any large added free features. They plan on following this now with an aggressive campaign in order to wind up the season of 1912 with the biggest roll of attendance ever registered at Harlem park. Tonight there will be a free open air band concert, featuring mostly recent popular successes.

Beginning Sunday and continuing for eight days the Flying Bicketts new big aerial sensation will be the big added free feature. This remarkable aerial trapeze act is considered to be without doubt the most elaborate and sensational act of its kind in the world today, and without doubt ever presented at Rockford's Riverview. This act alone should increase the attendance by large numbers. On the two Sundays they will give two exhibitions, one at four and the other at 9:30 p. m. On each week day they will give one exhibition at 9:30 p. m. This hour is late enough to permit of the people of Janesville and vicinity to journey to Rockford after their evening's meal and enjoy the many features at Harlem Park and witness this wonderful free act, and still return home before midnight.

Next August 12th to 15th will be amateur week at Harlem Park. Many local amateurs have entered the contest, and this will be without doubt one of the biggest amateur contests ever given in this section of the country. $50.00 in cash prizes will be distributed among the winners, and all desiring to enter should send their names at once to the amateur week Manager, Rockford City Traction Company, Rockford.

Other features will be booked to complete the season, and it is planned to have some big added free feature all the time from now on right up to the last day.

Municipal Affairs Of Vital Interest

WILKES-BARRE COMMISSION STOPS STREET SWEEPING

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—Street Commissioner Boyle is much elated over the scheme of flushing the city streets instead of sweeping them. The city has been experimenting with this method for a week or ten days; it has been done at night and gives entire satisfaction, the residents along the thoroughfares that have been treated in this manner being much elated over the new method. In all probability when the contract is let next year for the cleaning of the streets they will be washed instead of swept, as is the practice now. The street commissioner in referring to the cleaning the streets in this manner had the following to say in regard to it before the street cleaning committee of councils at the meeting recently: "From a sanitary point of view it surpasses any other method of cleaning that I know of. There is very little odor during progress of the work and absolutely none after it is finished. The contrast between a flushed street and a swept street is greatly in favor of the former. In sweeping a street, whether by machine or hand, a certain amount of dust naturally arises and again when the sweepings are being loaded into carts a second quantity of dust is scattered and a third quantity is left on the streets along the gutters to be blown into houses and stores by the first wind that arises or is converted into mud by the rain, whereas in the case of flushing the whole of the accumulations, whether of paper, horse droppings or any kind of rubbish is washed from the streets into the sewer, leaving the streets clean, pleasant to look at, sweet and wholesome to the sense of smell. I cannot too highly recommend the flushing system, although I must confess that the system I was compelled to work under consumed too much time and is too expensive. With proper apparatus consisting of hose with two branches or Y, and an appliance to which can be attached a horse for drawing the same, also a number of small trucks mounted on wheels to carry the hose, at least three times the amount of work can be done with less men and a great reduction in expense. I have had all the catch-pits examined and find them fairly free from mud, etc., showing that the rush of water prevented any great amount of sediment settling in the bottom of the pits."

TREE SURGEONS PLYING TRADE IN FOND DU LAC

Fond du Lac people are having considerable work done this year for the preservation of their shade and ornamental trees. Attention to the trees was created by the visit to the city of experts on the subject of tree surgery who are now engaged in various parts of the city binding the wounds of the trees.

The general plan of tree surgery is to remove all decayed wood and treat the wounds in a scientific manner. Pine tar, creosote and other preparations are used to fill up and protect the torn fiber. After two or three treatments the wounds are filled with cement, and the tree surgeon says that in time the bark will heal over the wound and hide the cement from view.

Scientific pruning and trimming, and bracing where wounds have undermined the strength of the tree trunks, are also features of the work that is being done in the city.

Said one of the tree experts here: "It is quite important to arrest decay and all kinds of fungi growth, if the tree is to be saved. Fungi growth kills the tree by traveling upward into the branches, while ordinary decay travels downward, hollows the trunk and finally the tree breaks down. Different sorts of treatment are required to arrest the fungi growth. Trees are treated for their ills just the same as physicians treat the wounds of the human body. It takes time for wounds to heal in trees just the same as it requires time for them to heal in the human body."

The "surgeon" was asked as to which was the best season of the year to trim trees, and he answered that trees will yield to treatment at all seasons of the year except during the time that the sap is moving in them. "Don't trim in the early spring when the sap is running," said the surgeon. "Every wound that is made when trimming or pruning is in progress should be treated without delay.—Fond du Lac Commonwealth.

OPPOSED TO SPRINKLING CITY'S ASPHALT STREETS

(Rockford Register-Gazette.) The Register-Gazette isn't in favor of sprinkling the asphalt streets at all, either day or night, because it believes it is useless and unnecessary and leaves them in a dangerous condition for automobile and other traffic.

What the Register-Gazette would do is what is done in other cities with a large mileage of asphalt streets, have them thoroughly washed, flushed and cleaned in the night-time and permit them to remain as dry as the concrete walks along the streets in the day-time, thus preventing the danger of the skidding of automobiles, motorcycles, bicycles and other vehicles, which is happening every day in Rockford and which will also make it possible for women who are down town shopping during the day to cross the streets wherever they please without accumulating a few pounds of mud and slime on their shoes and skirts each time they do so. Sprinkling of the asphalt streets in Rockford is absolutely senseless except to provide a revenue for the man who runs the sprinkling cart.

GIVE PLAYGROUND EXHIBIT FOR BENEFIT OF PARENTS

The first of a series of open-night exhibition programs to be held at the Madison summer playgrounds was given Wednesday evening at the Dory school playground. The program illustrated in general the work that is being carried on at the Dory and Brittingham playgrounds. Children won in the efficiency tests were given their badges. The program consisted of a folk dance by the little girls, marching calisthenic drill by the boys, volley ball games for both girls and boys, demonstrations of the correct manner of using playground apparatus, pyramid building by the boys, and games of "dodge ball" and basketball.

HAS PLAN TO BEAUTIFY ROCKFORD RIVER BANKS

(Register-Gazette.) In a communication to the council Monday night Attorney B. A. Knight asked that the city arrange for an official survey of both banks of Rock river, just above the girder bridge, and establish a river line as far north on the east bank as Jefferson street and one block north on the west bank. Mr. Knight's communication explained that a plan was on foot for the beautifying of the river front on both sides of the river. The plan is being considered by the Knight, Mower, Wholesale Grocery company, Butterworth and other property interests involved and the idea is for the property owners to stand the cost of the improvement in its entirety, in the event the city establishes a water line.

If the north banks are beautified, E. B. Sumner will father a plan for the beautifying of the river bank between the girder and middle bridges.

FIRE APPARATUS COMPANIES ARE MERGED IN HUGE TRUST

Says the Oshkosh Northwestern: It is charged that whenever a city, town or village purchases a fire engine, it contributes to a trust. Identical bids in a number of instances from the larger companies in manufacturing fire-fighting apparatus have aroused suspicion and the federal department of justice has been called upon to investigate.

EDINBURGH TO HAVE ZOO.

London.—It is proposed to provide Edinburgh with zoological gardens and to acquire the estate of Corstorphine hill for the purpose. The latter will cost 17,000 pounds, and 8,000 pounds will be required to stock the gardens with an initial collection of animals.

LIBRARY FOR DAKOTA TOWN.

Hot Springs, S. D.—This city is to have a $10,000 Carnegie library. Work will be started as soon as the architect's plans have been approved by Mr. Carnegie.

NEW POLICE BOAT.

A new police boat, to patrol the waters of the Chicago river and harbor, with Captain George Lemar in command, began its active duties Wednesday morning. A trip of inspection of the craft by various officials of the city, headed by Chief of Police McWeeny, was made Thursday.

LETS BRIDGE CONTRACTS.

At a meeting of the board of public works the contract for the erection and installation of two new bridges over the east branch of the river, one on Forest avenue, and the other on West First street, was awarded to the Vulcan Manufacturing company of this city.—Fond du Lac Commonwealth.

WASHINGTON TO INSTALL PORTABLE ASPHALT PLANT

Washington, D. C.—Plans of the District of Columbia government to purchase a portable asphalt plant for its own use are being expeditiously developed. It is proposed to have the new improvement, which will be used only in the repair of streets, installed here by September. Its cost is not to exceed $7,500.

ADVOCATED IN CHICAGO.

Clayton F. Smith, member of the Chicago Board of Local Improvements, who has returned from a trip of pavement and asphalt inspection in several Michigan cities, would adopt a plan whereby the city will furnish to the contractor the asphalt, mixed and ready for use. Mr. Smith believes that when the city furnishes its own material it will leave no question about the grade used. Chicago let its first contract for Topoka specification pavement Wednesday at a little more than one dollar a square yard.

CAMPAIGN TO RAISE FUNDS FOR SCOUTS

National Organization Gratified With Support Which is Being Extended to Movement.

A financial campaign is being carried on by the leaders of the Boy Scouts of America. The aim is to raise money from every part of the country to sustain the scout movement. While of course to obtain money to bear the expenses of national headquarters is the first aim in this campaign, another motive is equally important. Up to the present time the expenses of establishing the scout movement in this country have been met by a comparatively small group of philanthropists who were firmly convinced that scouting activities and the principles that they taught would make better citizens for the country and that once the movement was started it would be self-sustaining.

Now that there are between four and five hundred thousand boy scouts in this country and the scout movement has been tested, the founders hope the movement will go forward under its own momentum. It is believed that a financial campaign in which hundreds of men are appealed to and in which they give money will develop a still wider interest in the scout movement. The men who give money to support a principle are likely to look further and see if the money is wisely spent. It is believed also that the boys themselves want to pay something for the many benefits they receive. Already scoutmasters have taken that attitude.

Hitherto such persons as Andrew Carnegie, Mrs. Russell Sage, George D. Pratt and John D. Rockefeller have given money to help the scout movement. The present campaign is to appeal to men in every city and every town where the scouts are now established. One proposition is to appeal to 200 members of the national council to become contributing members at $100 each and to get them to enlist the support of at least two other contributors of $100 each. Next it is hoped to get sustaining members for the national organization at $10 a year. Already scout troops in different parts of the country are buying sustaining memberships.

The benefits which the boy scouts receive are almost incalculable. Through the scout movement they have a scoutmaster who is a supervisor of their play and a constant friend. The scoutmasters have as advisers men skilled in the science of handling boys. In addition arrangements have been made by which the price of all the supplies that the boys need for camping and for scouting work have been cut almost in half. Here the scout makes a saving. In the next place a magazine devoted to the interest of the boys has been bought by the scout organization and will be devoted exclusively to their interests, the aim being to put back into the magazine any profits that may accrue and build it up.

In a letter which James E. West, chief scout executive, sent out recently to scoutmasters throughout the country, he says:

"To make the work more efficient, to better guard against attempted unwise leadership, to secure Scout Masters for another 100,000 boys necessitates the employment of five traveling field Scout Commissioners at an additional cost of $25,000, including their traveling and other expenses."

It has been a part of our plan for some months to frankly set forth our needs to all interested in the Scout movement and give each person an opportunity to share in meeting our obligations. Some of our Scout Masters have taken the position that it was unfair for us not to give them an opportunity of helping to meet a share of the expenses from year to year by way of dues or by some other method."

Many persons have answered Mr. West's appeal in enthusiastic terms. "It gives me pleasure," writes William Henry Anderson of Cincinnati, Ohio, "to subscribe—and hope to contribute each year. I do not believe that anything has come into the modern life of a young boy that is more helpful toward establishing manhood than this organization."

"It seems to me," says C. W. Hadden, Minneapolis, Minn., "that logically the sooner the plan can be worked out practically to have both the local and national headquarters supported by scouts or the families themselves, the sooner will we be living out the scout law of self-support."

John Henry of St. Paul, Minn., writes: "I wish to assure you of my hearty co-operation as a member of the special finance committee and will do my best to secure at least two sustaining members." It is believed that Scouts everywhere would consider it an honor if they felt that they were in some small way helping to support the organization.

"We are a frontier town," writes M. L. Berney of Crawford, Neb., "and now in the Scouts. Are meeting with the encouragement from parents that we hoped for. Give us a chance and our boys will meet all your expectations."

"Regarding finances," says J. Blaine Withee of Lawrence, Mass., "I want to say that I have talked with our scouts and they are to give ten cents each for the support of the national headquarters' work. We are also to get each man on the council being organized to give something. In that way, more people will become interested."

"Troop 22, Boy Scouts of America," writes Ira Partin of Washington, D. C., "will contribute annually to national headquarters the sum of 25 cents a boy. Having twenty boys in all the total would be $5.00 to be sent in monthly payments of $1.00 until the entire amount has been paid into the treasury. This is done with the understanding that there are now 300,000 boys in the organization."

HERE is a car destined for leadership in 1913. The new unit gasoline and electric motor is bound to give it first place.

The 1912 Cross Country was a popular success. Big sales prove that. One hundred and five per cent—the increase for the year—is a record.

Gasoline and Electric Motor

Think what this new motor means. It combines two widely and thoroughly known principles; one is the perfected Cross Country gasoline engine; the other, in the commonly used electric motor generator.

Now you don't have to get out of your car to start or to light the lamps.

Press a button—you start.

Press another—you light the lamps.

Read the explanation herewith. Then see this new motor. The idea is so simple—the results so pleasing—you will wonder why it has not been done before.

The Cross Country in appearance has no equal.

Ten Inch Upholstery

In comfort we thought we had reached the limit—but now the Cross Country has ten-inch upholstery. Of power it has sufficient for any emergency.

It's so flexible you can travel on high gear no faster than a man usually walks, or fifty miles an hour.

To steer is but to touch the wheel. It guides so easily, you are conscious of no effort. The experienced motorist instantly appreciates this advantage.

Of its reliability there can be no question, vouched for by our ten-thousand-mile guarantee.

10,000 Mile Guarantee

Could you ask for more in a motor car?

Tear off, fill in and mail the coupon if you want a copy of the booklet describing the new unit gasoline and electric motor and the Announcement Number of the Rambler Magazine.

The gasoline electric motor consists of a single unit, combining a 38-horse-power, four-cylinder gasoline engine with an electric motor generator.

There is no need for a separate starting device.

Press a button—you start.

Press another—you light the lamps.

From the instant you press the starting button this electric motor generator is creating and storing electric energy for future use.

The usual cast iron fly wheel of an ordinary engine is left off.

Noiseless and Simple

The parts forming the electric motor generator take the place of the fly wheel.

It saves weight, bearings, chains, complicated wiring, and operates as silently as an electric motor.

The only wearing parts, other than those of all gasoline engines, are the motor generating brushes which are six times the necessary size—ample for many times the life of the car.

Except to put water in the batteries it requires no attention.

D. W. WATT Tells of his Experience with Indians In Show

In the following article by David W. Watt, the last year of existence of the old Adam Forepaugh show, with the old employees, the acts and route as planned by the famous old showman who passed away just as the season was about to open. This year marked the end of Mr. Watt's active participation in circus affairs. His ten years with Mr. Forepaugh were replete with interesting incidents and in future articles Mr. Watt will give the readers of the Gazette a few of them.

In describing the sale of the circus Mr. Watt neglected to make one fact clear, that was the pure accident that he did not become one of the owners of the show when it was to be sold. According to Mr. Forepaugh's will the show was to be sold to the highest bidder and the proceeds divided between his widow and son. As no bidders appeared up to noon of the day fixed for the sale, it had been practically decided that Mr. Watt and young Forepaugh should make a bid for the property, give their notes for the amount and with usual successful seasons, would have been able to pay the whole amount in a few years. However, at the last minute the bid of Bailey and his partners came in and this ended the plan of Forepaugh and Watt as it was higher than the price agreed upon for their sale. On January 24th of the year, Eighteen Hundred and Ninety Adam Forepaugh died and by the will the great show had to be sold with all its belongings for the most that could be got for it and the proceeds divided equally between the young widow and the son. The re-fitting for the year, the engaging of the people and all the paraphernalia that went to make up the show had been completed so there remained but little to do but set up the show and take the money. But for all this it seemed that there were no purchasers. The only one that made any offer for it was Cooper and Bailey and the Barnum show. They had been partners many years before and in the early seventies took a show around the world.

With this purchase they had to take all contracts made by Mr. Forepaugh for people for the coming season. I had no written contract with the show, for mine for ten years had always been verbal. So the new purchasers notified me they could find no contract for me and that I need not come on as they could not use me. But I soon found out that a verbal contract was as good as any if you had been used to working that way and I immediately notified them that I would be there in ample time.

I went on early in April about two weeks before the time for the show to open. They opened the show in the afternoon with new men in the wagon and they soon got things mixed up so they were glad to have me get in and sell the night house. And from then on I was always considered a fixture with the show for the season.

The new management made many changes so that the old show in many ways did not seem like home. The new management knew their business and ran the show high class in every way and yet many an old timer would come around to the ticket wagon and tell me that Mr. Forepaugh would not do this and that, and nearly all the old men were kept and were well paid and well used for years after.

This put the two great shows in the hands of the Barnum people so that there was no division of country or dispute as to territory.

Adam Forepaugh, Jr., was engaged for two seasons as equestrian director at a salary of $10,000 a season and also broke new horses and other animals for new acts for the coming year.

Joseph T. MacCadden who was a brother of Mrs. Bailey was acting manager of the show. The show started east this season, crossing into Canada for a few weeks and later making a short trip through the south. At Clarksville, Tenn., just after the opening of the evening show a desperado from the mountains rode up to the front door and shot one of the door tenders. He whistled his horse and quickly got away so that

Fads and Fashion

New York, August 3.—Women who have the ambition and the means to dress in accordance with fashion are looking forward with great interest to the autumn openings of the present month. The secret of the coming styles is well guarded but it is safe to assume that the everlasting problem of the ruling silhouette will again be brought into prominence in the displays. Of course, nothing definite is as yet known, but hints that have come from Paris indicate that the coming silhouettes will be a compromise like that of the Summer, but that a little more latitude will be given to width of skirts and to draperies.

It may be expected that the styles of autumn will depend, like those of summer, much upon accordion plaiting for their skirt fullness. This method of obtaining greater fullness without materially changing the slim silhouette permits of the introduction of countless changes and variations. One sees simple skirts entirely accented by a high girde and bodice entirely of sheer lace or tulle. Still others have both skirt and bodice accented by floating sleeves on Watteau line shoulder and train drapery of lace or other contrasting material.

Instead of the entirely plaited skirt one may use the plaiting only in a sheer tunic veiling and a clinging underskirt. The straight, long tunic of accordion plaited tulle or other thin, transparent material over plain figured stuff is usually effective and becoming, detracting not in the least from the straightness of the silhouette yet giving the touch of motion which marks the skirt of this season's vintage. A plaited bib jabot brings the bodice into harmony with the skirt, and this same design may be carried out for fall and winter wear with fair certainty of modishness. A line of tiny buttons down jabot and tunic fronts is a good detail.

A draped tunic over an underskirt of accordion plaiting limp and narrow in lines about the feet is another version of the accordion plaiting skirt idea. In some frocks the plaiting forms only a petticoat charming in the skirt front.

Black and white is as usual an oft repeated combination, and blue and white is very popular, the blue being used in all shades from Nattier and blue to marine and crows wing. The old medium blue tones, cool and usually becoming, figure very considerably among the midsummer toilettes, usually in connection with white and are especially pretty in the lincens, pongees and certain combinations of silk with lingerie or sheer white stuff such as silk voile, marquisette and tulle.

An uncommonly good looking costume in this coloring had a Norfolk coat of old blue eponge with collar straps of white eponge and big white pearl buttons. The plain skirt was of white eponge. The Norfolk, with slight variations of cut and detail, by the way, is enormously popular this summer in everything from white serge and white chambrase to linen and tweed. It is, of course, always informal in air, but the plain Norfolk suits of white dull finish satin or chambrase worn with dainty lingerie or tulle blouses have much elegance in their informality and make charming costumes even for afternoon at such a place as a country club or sporting event or on the street.

A pretty novelty is the wash blouse with plaittings at the wrist to match the Pierrot collar. These waists have long tight sleeves and are worn with the ruffled. Net waists also have short sleeves with two ruffles of lace or a tulle plaiting.

Some of the new blouses have full loose sleeves shirred into the armhole and gathered to fit the arm with ribbon through beading or form a ruffle below the gathering. The body is shirred on the shoulders along the shoulder seam.

Other blouses are shirred around the neck to form a V in front, to be worn with a Robespierre collar, either of the waist fabric, of white lawn, or of black, blue or ecruise satin with knife-plaited jabots on the ends. The Byron collar of embroidery, lace or embroidered linen is worn with a soft tie knotted in front, or a single jabot. These blouses are also made of handkerchief linen, hand embroidered, with plaited frills at the wrists.

Lace blouses are sometimes trimmed with mousseline de soie piping in colors. All-over lace blouses and those of wide flat insertion, combined with shadow or Venice lace, are very fashionable. The polo shirtwaist of China, Shantung or taffetta silk is new and much liked. It is the plain-tailored waist, made with a box plait with tiny pearl buttons in front, long shoulders, with sleeves of full length set in and stitched flatly, with a turnover cuff and ank buttons. The collar is a high turnover, the corners held down by pearl buttons. With this soft, double collar one may wear a four-in-hand and pin, a sailor knot of mouseline, a bow of velvet ribbon with a small square bow, or a square bow and short cravat.

Striped batiste and dimity waists in lingerie style may be very dressy with lace insertions lengthwise. Striped taffeta Russian blouses with a pelum are handsome with a white skirt. Some waists in striped effects are made up to have the center of the waist back and front, striped and the remainder of the garment plain.

Lace blouses in black or white are considered very smart, worn with a white satin tailored skirt, a fine lingerie or a black satin skirt. A novelty waist of lace consists of motifs of lace, three kinds joined together. All such waists have the neck collarless and the sleeves set in.

Among soft materials for blouses there are many pretty and inexpensive crepes and velvets. Even the most sheer of the imported crepes wear remarkably well, and their saving in laundry bills for a season is an appreciable economy.

French ribbon-work flowers, used in the form of knots or wreaths and hidden by overdraperies, are one of the most charming new features of evening gowns.

Dinner Stories

James McNeil Whistler was dining with a friend in London. Suddenly, when all had dined and were back in the drawing room, Whistler said that he had almost forgotten it, but he absolutely must write a letter and get it off by the night's post. He was told that in a room at the head of the first flight of stairs he would find the lights burning and pens, paper and ink at his disposal. He went up, and presently there was heard a series of bumps, ending in a heavy thud at the foot of the stairs. The master had tripped, lost his balance and came near having a bad fall. The host ran to him and asked if he was hurt. "I am not killed, if that's what you mean!" Whistler replied; "but, tell me, who built those stairs." The host mentioned the name of a builder unknown either to Whistler or to fame. "Humph, he does the d-d teetotaler," said Whistler.

After a long, hot and dusty journey by train the New York commercial traveler arrived in Richmond, bunched enough dust off his face to make sure that the right man was getting off, and hailed one of the little seagoing boats common in the Old Dominion city. It was driven by an aged negro. "Drive me to a haberdashery," said the traveling man, surveying his soiled valmet with disfavor. "Yas, sah," said the negro. "Giddup." The old horse started off at a little stiff-legged jog trot. The driver seemed to be thinking deeply. By and by he pulled the horse to a stop and leaned backward to his fare. "Scusa me, sah," said he, "but wey did you all want to go?" "Drive me to a haberdashery," said the traveling man. "Oh, yasuh," said the negro. "To be sure, Giddup." The hack rattled on for a little way, and then the negro stopped, got off the box and poked his head in over the little door. "Mebebe Ah didn't get dat name 'is' right," said he. "Woud you all mine repeatin it, sah?" The traveling man said for the third time that he wanted to go to a haberdashery. The old driver shook his gray wool and looked grieved. "Ah'm an ole man," said he. "Yoush kin trust me. Whead is it you really want to go?"

"I don't believe in forcing schools for children," said Governor Woodrow Wilson at a dinner in Trenton. "A child that knows at four as much

Your Health and Happiness Depend Upon the Condition of Your Spinal Column.

When Your Spine Is Out Of Order You Get Sick.
When It Is Put In Order You Get Well.

Disease is a lack of life. Life is carried to the different parts of the body through nerves which pass through the spinal column. When these nerves are pinched as shown in the second opening here the life force is restricted and disease is the result. The Chiropractor locates the point of pressure and relieves it by adjusting the vertebrae into normal position. He removes obstruction, thereby allowing nature's restorative powers to reach the diseased parts. We do not treat effects. We remove the cause and Nature eliminates the disease.

The body is nothing more or less than a machine. When a machine fails to run properly we call a mechanic to locate the trouble. Be as good to your body as you would to your automobile and when it is not running properly (sick) go to a master mechanic (Chiropractor) and let him locate the trouble and remove the cause; thereby giving nature a chance to restore.

Chiropractic does not confine itself to any one or special disease, having successfully removed the cause of numerous diseases both acute and chronic.

THOUGHT SELFISHNESS.

WHEN we speak of selfishness, we are apt to think first of selfishness about material things, but the more I study human nature, the more I become convinced that this is the least common and the least harmful kind of selfishness. There are so many other kinds of selfishness that spoil more happiness than this variety! For instance, there is the selfishness of the person who is never amiable unless he holds the center of the stage; the selfishness of the person who is generous enough about material things, but inordinately greedy about having his own way; the selfishness of the person who allows a tendency, such as habit of worrying, to spoil half the family happiness; and then there is thought-selfishness.

It was that last variety that started me philosophizing on this subject. By thought-selfishness, I mean the habit of being ungenerous with one's thoughts. I know a man who has very interesting thoughts. He has a keen sense of humor, an unusual fund of information and a habit of observation. When he sees fit to talk—really talk, I mean, not just say the absolutely necessary things—he almost always has something interesting to say. But unless he is in a very gracious mood, he will often sit perfectly silent, ignoring the conversation, and thinking his own interesting thoughts to himself.

Now I believe that that man is selfish when he does this. He owes the world the benefit of his intelligence, and he is just as stingy and miserly when he sits there hoarding his thoughts as the miser counting his gold.

This man is an exaggerated example of this type, but I know a great many men and women who are thought-selfish in one way or another. There is the man who eats his breakfast in stolid silence broken only by occasional requests for more food. His wife tries to draw him out but he is absorbed in his own thoughts. There are many things which he might say that would give her something to think about during the day, but he is simply too lazy to put his thoughts into words.

Then there is the son or daughter who comes home at night from an interesting day at school or work, with half a dozen things in his or her mind that would interest or divert the house-bound mother, and yet does not take the trouble to tell them to her.

The man who does not credit other people with a sense of humor, and so smiles to himself when anything amuses him, is another member of this species. No one has a right to keep anything clearly amusing to himself. Pass it on. "The poor old earth must borrow its mirth," you know. If you have any to lend, do not be miserly with it.

The man who reads the morning paper and does not pass on the bits of news that he thinks would be interesting to his family, certainly is thought-selfish, and also the person who gets a letter and does not communicate those parts of it which are communicable and of general interest.

Uncommunicative people are often praised and admired. To be sure, the person who chatters continually about nothing is a bore; but the person who has something to chatter about and doesn't chatter is also a bore; and what is more than that he is selfish. Don't you think so?

MARY ELLEN'S WAY

How Mary Ellen Manages to Get Some New China

WHEN we move into our new house," remarked Mary Ellen reflectively, "we'll need some new china."

"You'll have to wait awhile, little woman," said Mr. Mary Ellen. "That house is about going to clean me out. There are so many expenses cropping up all the time that you never know about. You might as well double the first estimate of cost."

"That's just what I was thinking about," said Mary Ellen. "And so I thought it would be nice to have a wedding anniversary."

"A wedding anniversary! What's that got to do with it?"

"We can have a china anniversary and all our friends will give us china. Don't you see? In that way we'd get all we want."

"Well of all gruffs!" said Mr. Mary Ellen.

"Not at all," replied Mary Ellen spiritedly. "Everybody has anniversaries. And people love to give things."

"Oh, do they?" queried Mr. Mary Ellen. "Seems to me I have heard you remark somewhat otherwise at Christmas and on birthdays."

"But then, really, when you give a present, you do feel sort of nice," said Mary Ellen. "After you've got over the wrench of paying for it you have a nice, warm sort of feeling to think how pleased your friend will be to get it. How long have we been married, dear?"

"H'm! Let me see. About nine years, hasn't it been?" hazarded Mr. Mary Ellen.

"I knew you wouldn't know," laughed Mary Ellen. "It's been twelve years."

"Goodness! So long as that?"

"I can't just remember," went on Mary Ellen, "which anniversary china is. But it doesn't matter. Nobody else knows either."

"Great heavens, dear! Suppose it should be the twenty-fifth or the fiftieth or something like that. People know we haven't been married that long."

"Oh, I know it's not those. It's the tenth or fifteenth or may be the eighth, and nobody remembers how long we have been married. You didn't yourself, and if anybody is mean enough to work it all out, we can make a joke about getting it wrong. Nobody will care. They'll have a good time, and we'll get a lot of nice china. Because everybody'll feel they have to bring something pretty nice."

Mr. Mary Ellen smoked reflectively.

"And they say," he remarked after awhile, "that women can't understand politics."

"But dear," expostulated Mary Ellen, "everybody has china weddings and such things. It's—"

"Oh, I'm not saying anything," interrupted Mr. Mary Ellen. "Go ahead. It doesn't make any difference to me. Only I would really try to have it on the date of our marriage."

"Why to be sure," said Mary Ellen. "It wouldn't be an anniversary if we didn't do that."

"Wouldn't it?" said Mr. Mary Ellen. "I thought may be you were privileged to get that mixed up too, if necessary."

"The idea!" exclaimed Mary Ellen. "Men do have such crazy ideas about things."

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

Henrietta D. Grauel

is more appetizing than fresh bread and suitable for so many uses. Cut bread in even, half-inch thick slices; if crusts are not liked they may be trimmed off and rolled for breading.

If soft toast is wanted, have the fire hot and brown the bread at once; the center then will only be hot. If dry toast is wanted, turn the bread over over low heat until the moisture is extracted and then brown.

Toast to be used under game and meats is made dry, then buttered and salted and moistened with a little boiling water.

Fruit Toast—Dessert—Slice the bread exceedingly thin, color a pale gold and use plenty of butter. When ready to serve dip the toast quickly into thick cream and spread with marmalade or preserved or stewed fruit. This should be served very cold.

Duchesse Toast—Dip stale bread into a batter made of an egg beaten with a little milk and sweetened. Place the slices on a toaster and brown both sides over a clear fire. Do not let it scorch, but brown each side lightly. Spread with butter and then with jelly.

Brown Betty Toast—Peel the apples and slice very thin; dredge with powdered sugar and nutmeg and cinnamon. Slice the bread and butter it well, and cover each slice with a layer of the seasoned, sweetened apples and dot over with bits of butter. Place the bread on a rack in a shallow pan in a hot oven so the air can circulate around it. Do not let the slices overlap. In ten minutes the bread should be brown and the apples done. Serve with cream.

Army Fritters, bread omelet, gold bricks, nun's toast and Spanish toast are a few of the names given one of the most delicious toasts possible to make. Cut stale bread in slices half an inch thick. Make a batter of eggs and a little milk. Dip the slices in this and fry in hot butter in a frying pan until brown, as an omelet. Serve hot with honey, syrup or jelly.

Kidney toast is fine. Chop two small kidneys. Fry them in butter. Season with Worcestershire sauce, cover with cream and thicken the mixture with cornstarch. Butter the toast and spread with the kidney mince. Sprinkle with cheese and brown in a quick oven.

Toasted English Muffins—Open the muffin exactly in the middle for half an inch, insert the toasting fork and brown lightly all over. Now pull the muffin apart and butter each half and close. Put on a hot plate and send at once to table.

Beef Tongue Toast—Grate a boiled tongue or tongue it finely and season it with parsley, butter, salt and pepper. Make into a paste with yolks of eggs. Heat it and spread it over toast. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs and place in oven until needed.

The Kitchen Cabinet

TAKE your needle, my child, and work at your pattern; it will come out a rose by and by. Life is like that—each stitch at a time taken patiently, and the pattern will come out all right like the embroidery.

—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

HOT WEATHER DISHES.

A fetching and appetizing salad is this: Lay a slice of chilled pineapple on a lettuce leaf, heap a nicely seasoned spoonful of cream cheese in the center and sprinkle with chopped pecans, peanuts or pistachio nuts. Serve with French dressing.

German Salad—Boil a white, solid head of cabbage until perfectly tender; drain carefully and put to press between two weights until quite cold. Then slice and place in a salad bowl with half a dozen cold boiled potatoes cut in slices, a sliced beet, and half a dozen hard cooked eggs cut in slices, a finely chopped onion, and a quarter of a sour orange; mix gently. Have ready a cupful of tartar sauce, season with salt, pepper, mix again and serve with any cold roast. A drop or two of tabasco sauce is an improvement.

Tartar Sauce—Mix a tablespoonful of vinegar, a teaspoonful of lemon juice, a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce in a bowl and beat over hot water. Brown a third of a cup of butter in an omelet pan and add to the first mixture.

Fried Tomatoes With Cream Sauce.—Cut tomatoes in halves without peeling, season with salt, pepper and roll in very fine crumbs. Fry in hot fat until brown, then take up carefully with a pancake turner and arrange on a chop plate. Add a tablespoonful of drippings to the fat already in the pan, stir in a tablespoonful of flour and as soon as it bubbles add a cup of rich milk. Stir until smooth and pour around the tomatoes.

Oatmeal Drink—Mix a tablespoonful of fine oatmeal into a smooth paste with water, then pour over three plates of boiling water, stirring all the time. Place over the heat and boil until reduced to two pints. Set aside to cool, and pour the clear gruel from the sediment. Add to this the juice of a lemon and sufficient sugar to sweeten. Serve cold.

Lemon Fizz—Grate yellow rind from three lemons, squeeze the juice of six, pour over two quarts of boiling water, stir in a half pound of sugar, and a half yeast cake. Let stand over night. Bottle, and it is ready for use in a day.

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

Edna K. Woolley

WHY SOME MEN ARE DECEIVERS.

The two men were sitting at the table back of me in the hotel dining room, and I couldn't help hearing what they said.

They were planning some kind of an evening—fishing trip, I think. One of them was a bachelor and was a little of a flirt. The other one, it appeared, was married. And this is about the way the conversation ran:

"Aw, say, old chap, just say you'll come. It's one of the best places I know of, and we'll have a bully time."

"Well, I'd like to," hesitated the other. "But there's my wife, you know. She's apt to make objections if she thought I wanted to go off by myself for a good time."

"Just put it up to her and I'll be O. K.," confidently spoke the bachelor. "I don't see how any woman can object to a decent, little trip like that. I'll do you good to get away for awhile."

"Um—yes," assented the other. "But you don't know my wife. Now, if I could get her to take a little trip herself, you know—without her guess—"

"This will take out the yellow tinge."

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I am engaged to a girl but her father doesn't like me and has told me never to enter the house again. He says I am not good enough for his daughter and he wants her to marry a gentleman.

Now, Mrs. Thompson, I am a workingman, but I guess I am something of a gentleman. I know I am not good enough for my girl, but I don't think anybody else is good enough for her, either, and if she is willing to marry me and her mother thinks I am O. K., do you think I ought to care what her father says?

I agree with you that a workingman can be a gentleman. In fact I have known many workmen who were much more gentlemanly in their actions and the kindness of their hearts, than some men who think they are gentlemen because of their birth or wealth.

The girl undoubtedly loves her father and it is natural that she wishes to have him at her wedding. Why not plan the wedding at her home some evening, without telling the date to the father? The minister might appear to drop in for a friendly call; the same with a very few of your friends. Have the license ready and then, when father least expects it, the minister can marry you.

Remember, where there's a will there's a way. Consult with your girl and her mother, and you surely will be able to make a plan. If you can't, persuade the mother to help you marry the girl whether her father consents or not.

I like your letter, Fred, and from it I judge that you are an honest man, able and willing to take the right kind of care of a wife. So go in and win!

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I have some white clothes that have been laid away a couple of years, and they have a yellow tinge. How can I take out the yellow without injuring the clothes?

MRS. W. G.

After washing the clothes, put a teaspoon of borax in the rinsing water.

er. This will take out the yellow tinge.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—How can I make a good homemade paste something like library paste?

MARY O.

A very good paste which will not discolor, can be made of rice flour. Mix the flour thoroughly with cold water and boil it gently. It is white and transparent and will keep indefinitely if a little carbolic acid is mixed with it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I have a very dear friend—or I did have—but the other day I heard something that he did and it made me very angry. I was so angry that I wrote him about it and it was a very unkind letter. I have just found that what I heard wasn't true, but I suppose he will never forgive me now. What shall I do about it? I am almost heartbroken.

UNHAPPY GIRL.

It is too bad that you were so hasty. When one hears reports about a very dear friend, one should not judge so quickly, but at least take time to investigate before condemning or accusing the friend.

But now the mischief is done in your case, and if your friend is very much hurt it will be difficult to undo.

About all you can do is to write him another letter and apologize. Tell him that you regretted it the moment after you had mailed that letter, when you had time to think and to remember how really trustworthy you had always found him. Ask him to forgive your hasty and thoughtless action and tell him that you will not again be guilty of such a breach of friendship as to quickly believe anything detrimental of him when in your heart you know better.

If he is high-spirited and generous, he will forgive your letter, but the fact that at the first opportunity you believed ill of him, will probably rankle in his soul for many a day.

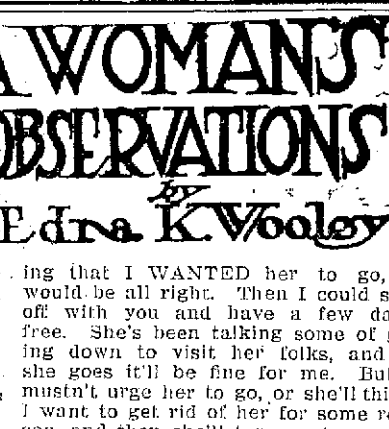

You can't mistrust or abuse a really good friend and keep him, too.

ADVANTAGES OF RYE.

The London Lancet says there is little difference between wheat and rye, in nutritive value, but that rye keeps longer and is more laxative. Examination of the cell of rye under the microscope shows it to be smaller and to have a finer cellulose covering approaching that of rice, thus making it more easily digested. Whole rye flakes, little cooked, are easily digested, form a complete ration and are very laxative.

For Nervous Children.

A naturally nervous child, one who has been pampered, should early be taught self-control and the value of it. It is essential to discourage emotionalism and never contenance fits of temper. Plenty of fresh air and sunlight are great aids to naturally nervous children, and all rich foods should be forbidden.

SIDEWALK KETCHES.

(By Howard L. Rahn.)

CICERO.
Tullius Cicero was a celebrated Roman author who wrote a large number of books which are still devoured with great eagerness and a Latin pony.

Before Cicero came on the scene, there was little or no sale for the Latin language. People used it to order things over the telephone and to criticize the out of each other's tunics, but you could buy all of the Latin you could carry home at ten cents on the dollar. Most of the Latin in use was a cross between the German vocal method and the Bar Harbor accent, and very little of it was picked up until Cicero's time.

One of the first things Cicero did, however, was to take this noble language and remodel it so that people could understand what he was trying to say after somebody had translated it for them. He threw out a large number of words which nobody used except in the presence of company, and invented the Roman numeral to take their place. He was the first Roman citizen who knew "amo, amas, amat" from any other part of the marriage ritual.

Cicero inherited an eloquent Roman nose and a swollen fortune, and never had to mark his books down to 49 cents or run his orations on the patent inside, in company with a cure for lame back and the insidious appeal of the electric belt. In early life he married a lady who had a little money out at 5 per cent, and thereafter used nothing but full Morocco binding.

Cicero's free and uninterrupted use of the Latin tongue, which he threw around with ceaseless energy, offended some of the Roman bosses, who carefully burned his house down and exiled him to Athens, where he subdued a large quantity of Greek roots. On his return he was elected consul and hurled defiance and some harsh, new Latin words in the teeth of his traducers.

Cicero would have lived for several years longer if it had not been for Mark Anthony, who surrounded him with his army and caused him to demise in a hasty and unseemly manner. He was a great and good man, and his works read well in almost any language.

A GREAT RECORD.

Hard to Duplicate It in Janesville

Scores of representative citizens of Janesville are testifying for Doan's Kidney Pills. Such a record of local endorsement is unequalled in modern times. This public statement made by a citizen is but one of the many that have preceded it and the hundreds that will follow. Read it:

Mrs. Emilie Hall, 542 Franklin St., Janesville, Wis., says: "I suffered terribly from pains through the small of my back and limbs and I also had trouble from the kidney secretions. Someone finally advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I did so, procuring them at the People's Drug Co. The contents of two or three boxes corrected my trouble. I hope that the publication of my statement will induce other kidney sufferers to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial."

(Statement given in August, 1908.)
RE-ENDORSEMENT.
Mrs. Hall was interviewed on September 23, 1910 and she said: "You may continue to publish my former statement regarding Doan's Kidney Pills. Since I used them two years ago, I have had no further need of a kidney medicine."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Do Janesville People Realize
The Beauty of Rock River?

While the banks of Rock river in the vicinity of Janesville have not been ornamented with palatial summer homes and its shores have not been laid out into well kept parks and gardens, there is an attractiveness in the natural beauty of the entire valley which cannot help but appeal.

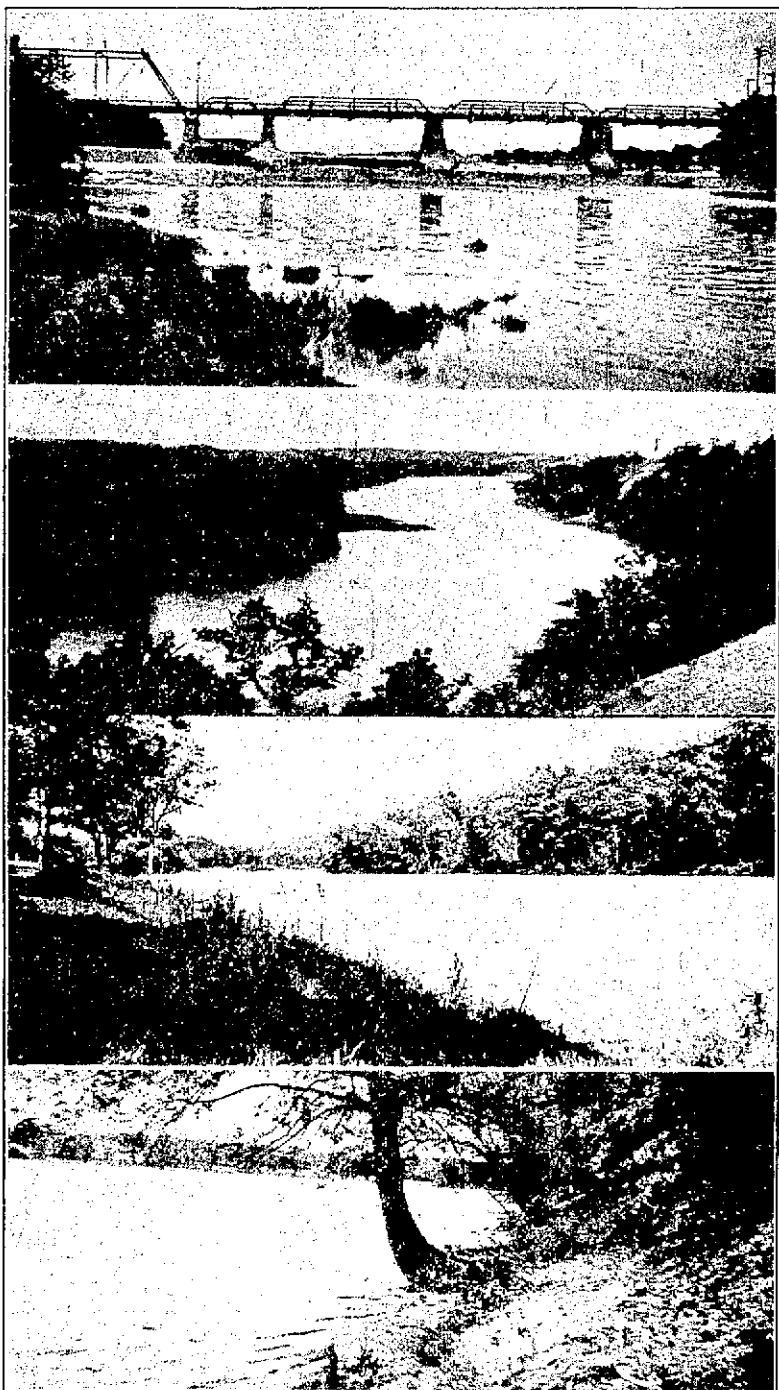

Too many lakes scattered throughout the southern part of the state have been largely responsible for the neglect of Rock river as a resort place. These have offered the advantages of larger and clearer bodies of water and have generally been favored rather than the river valleys.

But the entire length of the Rock Valley is remarkable for its picturesque beauty and there may come a day when it will be developed more extensively. As it is there are numerous cozy cottages lining its banks for eight miles above this city and new ones are erected each year. Its shores afford sites which are available to the man of moderate means and it is possible to spend the entire the water. The Blue Rock Springs just above the four mile bridge have a wide reputation for their pure and sparkling product.

With the natural attractiveness of the landscape, with convenient springs and with easy access to the city, all that is needed to develop the river valley as a resort is an active boom started among residents here. Realizing the increased interest which is gradually being taken in the river as a pleasure ground, the Janesville Boat Club has done its share in clearing the river-bed of obstructions so that it will be navigable to launches as far as Indian Ford, and its members have encouraged improvements at every point.

Beyond the boat club there has been practically no concerted action toward popularizing the river as a resort place. It has been suggested that a park open to the public with the added attraction of amusement features would serve to interest people more effectively in the river possibilities. This has never been tried on anything near the scale summer at an up-river camp at the same time attending to the daily routine of business. For this reason Rock river camps are coming to appeal more and more to Janesville people and Janesville people it will be who will enjoy the river scenery and take the most pride in the further development of the stream.

Springs bubbling forth their waters to add to the river's flow are nestled at frequent intervals in the shady banks. The water of several of these has become famed throughout the nation notably that of the Burr Springs about three miles above the city. The extensive bottling works which have just been completed bear testimony of the popularity and superiority of this remarkable spring water which has won honors in competition with the famous springs of the world. There is little difference in the chemical qualities of the Hiawatha spring water and that of other springs located nearby according to experts who have examined which might be attempted. Harlem park near Rockford is an example of what might be done, but the financial outlook would be heavier, perhaps, than could be profitable when the doubtful success is taken into consideration. However, the adventure need not be so extensive. Opportunities for boating, out-of-door games, and a few other amusement features ought to be sufficient to bring large crowds to such a park every day provided transportation was furnished at frequent intervals at moderate rates.

But it should not be gathered that the people of Janesville do not appreciate Rock river. One has only to note the scores of picnic parties that journey to some picturesque spot to enjoy a Sunday outing, or the large number of launches that carry excursionists, to realize that the river scenery is thoroughly enjoyed. In due time the material evidence of the stream's popularity as a resort place will doubtless be forthcoming.

E. F. U. ASSEMBLY
STAG PICNIC SUNDAY

Arrangements Completed For Annual Outing—Members And Friends To Go Ten Miles Up River.

Arrangements have been completed for the annual "stag" picnic of the members of the local E. F. U. Fraternal Union Assembly, which will be held ten miles up the Rock river tomorrow. The steamer will leave the Fourth Avenue dock at 9 o'clock in the morning. Lunch and refreshments will be served on the picnic grounds and will be free to members. Each member is entitled to bring one friend with him. Amusements of different kinds have been planned, including two ball games between picked teams. The return will be made early in the evening. Albert Knuth, Albert Knuth, and Herman Buchholz constitute the committee on picnic arrangements.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE.

(CONTRIBUTED)

I wonder if Wisconsin people associate the "Margaret Haley Suffragist" demonstrating washing machines for the Political Equality League in Milwaukee with the Margaret Haley of Chicago fame, who won the fight for the Chicago Federation of Teachers in getting a raise of salary, which was denied them by the Board of Education, under the plea that "The treasury did not possess the requisite funds?"

Under the wonderful management of Miss Haley, a strong organization of Chicago teachers was formed, and just to show you what a body of mere women can do, in demonstration of their executive ability, in the really "big affairs" you will pardon my apparent wandering from the subject of suffrage.

These women made themselves familiar with the amount due the school treasury and then went to the school board and said, "If we get this money, can we teachers have it?" Oh, certainly they could. It sounded just as reasonable as if they had asked for a right to the moon, (provided they grasped it.) But it wasn't very long till Miss Haley had lawyers engaged to show up to a Chicago court corporation whose assessments were not collected as per the law, and the result was, that the teachers got only their hard earned salary, but there was money left over for large school appropriations, for buildings and needed improvements for schools. This is a good instance of woman's demonstration of her ability in municipal affairs for the larger public good. If she can accomplish this in the tangled web of conditions found in Chicago, then, certainly woman may be trusted to wield their influence for good in any community and company, state or nation, will benefit in enlisting this force for good.

And now you will appreciate what a joke it is for some of us to see Miss Haley demonstrating washing machines in Milwaukee for the Equality League fund. But she believes in the cause she is enlisted in—Woman's Vote, and she also believes in the machine, that it is the best machine on the market, and also the cheapest, or she would not sell it. And there is no work that this energetic and capable woman will not gladly undertake, if she may thereby help her sister woman.

Mrs. Gertrude Atherton, authoress and resident of San Francisco, hastening home to register, preparatory to voting, thus denounces the apathetic on the subject. The indifferent women (to the vote) "are like a lot of oysters. Suffrage was won by a lot of earnest women who were in touch with a great world movement, and the women not appreciating this opportunity are of a low order of intelligence." The Chicago Equality League are getting up petitions to be signed by one hundred thousand registered voters.

On the evening of August 1, the young people of Evansville, Wis., gave a play entitled, "How We Won The Vote," which was followed by an address on Woman Suffrage by Miss Lola La Pollette.

There are to be seventy-five fairs in Wisconsin during August and September. Speakers on Woman Suffrage have been engaged for a number of them, among them, Mrs. Ella S. Stewart of Chicago, Miss Harriet M. Grim, Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, will deliver two weeks in September to the cause in Wisconsin, from Sept. 12 to Sept. 25, from Wisconsin she will go directly to Oregon.

Miss Lola La Pollette has promised part of the first week in August to the Suffrage cause in Wisconsin. She will speak at the Orpheum Theatre, in Madison, at Tower Hill, Spring Green, at the Delavan Lake Assembly and other places.

of deeds, Frank Hyne; for county treasurer, Clark Pierce; for clerk of court, D. T. Boner; for district attorney, R. M. Richmond; for county surveyor, Robert Caldwell; for assembly, first district, Alexander Paul.

Each paper filed on the republican ticket according to the terms of the law, must have not more than 743 and not less than 285 signatures which is 10 per cent and three per cent of the vote cast by the party at the last general election. For the democratic party each candidate must have not more than 324 and not less than 97 signatures. Few mistakes were found in the nomination papers. In one or two instances candidates had circulated their own papers which is contrary to the law. These were thrown out but other signatures were sufficient to bring the total number high enough preventing the throwing out of the candidate's name.

Candidate for the Senate

TO THE VOTERS OF THE 22ND SENATORIAL DISTRICT:—

It is with some embarrassment that one writes of one's own work, but there seems to be no other way to properly present the matters appropriate for consideration.

"What service has the candidate rendered and what can he render to his constituents?" That shall be the prime question.

1. Pursuant to the request of the Rock County Board, secured the passage of bill authorizing counties to engage in the abstract business.

2. After vigorous fight, by request of Rock County Board, secured provision in state highway bill providing for an unpaid commission and for the return to the county of all money for highway construction paid to the state as taxes and for the return to the county of all automobile license money for road construction.

3. At request of bakeries of Rock County, defeated the so-called Sunday baking bill 154A, after it had been ordered engrossed by vote of 60 to 27. It appeared that the bill, if passed, would destroy about one-third of the shipping business of bakeries in Rock County.

4. At the request of numerous banks of Rock County, aided materially in defeating the bill limiting loans from savings accounts. The bill was defeated.

5. At the request of Rock County banks, secured passage of bill validating acknowledgements of instruments in favor of the banks taken by bank officers. This bill came very late and required a fight on the floor to get it in at all.

6. Strongly aided Assemblyman Fisher in introducing and passing the Janesville Fourth avenue bridge bond bill long after the time for introducing bills had expired.

7. At the urgent request of Rock and Walworth County farmers, worked hard for and secured amendment of compulsory tuberculosis test law, abrogating the compulsory feature and giving the farmer fairer compensation for cattle slaughtered.

8. Introduced and secured passage of bill permitting high school district, Town of Milton and Village of Milton, to dissolve.

9. At the request of Janesville railroad men, and because it was just, aided materially in passing bill relating to purchase of tickets.

10. Voted to dispense with contract labor at state prison as far as possible as being unfair to laborers and manufacturers. To establish twine manufacturing plant to benefit both farmer and laborer.

11. Voted for the workmen's compensation act as a measure of reasonable justice to workingmen long denied to them.

12. At request of Rock and Walworth County Poultry Associations voted for a more equitable division of state aid to such associations.

13. Voted against many other bills which were purely in the interests of people of other sections of the state and against the interests of the taxpayers of Rock, Walworth and other counties in Southern Wisconsin. Notably, the terminal taxation bill, exempting from unit taxation and subjecting to local taxation lake terminal railway properties; also, bill to purchase stump pullers by state; also bill to exempt from operation of anti-pass law real estate agents engaged in selling northern lands.

14. The initiative and referendum joint resolution was proposed and largely worked out by me after quite exhaustive study. It was pronounced by Theodore Roosevelt and by many students of the problem from other states probably the sanest, safest and most complete system for a corrective on bad or corrupt legislation ever devised.

15. The income tax amendment had been adopted by the people by a vote of 4 to 1 in this state. All political parties endorsed it in their platforms. The principle is right and just. I did not vote for the present measure. Until something definite is known as to its results, it is too early to declare absolutely against it. It is certain that the farmer, house owner, and proprietor of visible, tangible property are paying too large a portion of the taxes. I believe strongly in an income tax that will compel the owner of intangible funds and securities to pay his just taxes. The present law should be amended and its administration greatly simplified.

16. At the request of Rock County people, I voted against measure to appoint salaried medical officer in each town for the compulsory medical examination of school children, but voted for free medical examination if parents permitted it.

17. Voted to submit woman suffrage bill to the people.

18. Voted against joint resolution for recall of judges.

VOTE YOUR SECOND CHOICE FOR SENATOR!

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Gazette, Aug. 2, 1872.—Saved From Drowning.—Frank Newton fell in the flume belonging to the Morse, Hanson and Co's shops this afternoon, and would probably have drowned but for the courageous efforts of Frank Harrison, who succeeded in rescuing him after he had sunk once.

Fire Proof Warehouse. The Haris Manufacturing company begin, next week, the erection of a fire-proof warehouse, for the storage of their machines, on the lot adjoining their works on the corner of Center and Franklin streets. The building will be 60x60 feet and two stories in height. The house located on the old Corvill property on the corner of Center and Franklin streets, last owned by Dr. Gish, is offered for sale by the Harris company. The building must be moved off next week.

Withington's Binder. C. B. Withington is busily engaged at work on his grain binder, with the hope of getting it into the field for a test this season. It is a simple machine, constructed on what appears to be a correct principle, and there is every reason to hope that it will prove to be a success.

Brief Items: The lumber for rebuilding Roethinger's brewery was ordered the next day after the fire, and as soon as it is received the work will begin. Mr. Roethinger purchased a new brewing kettle in Milwaukee yesterday and he intends to have the brewery in operation as soon as possible.

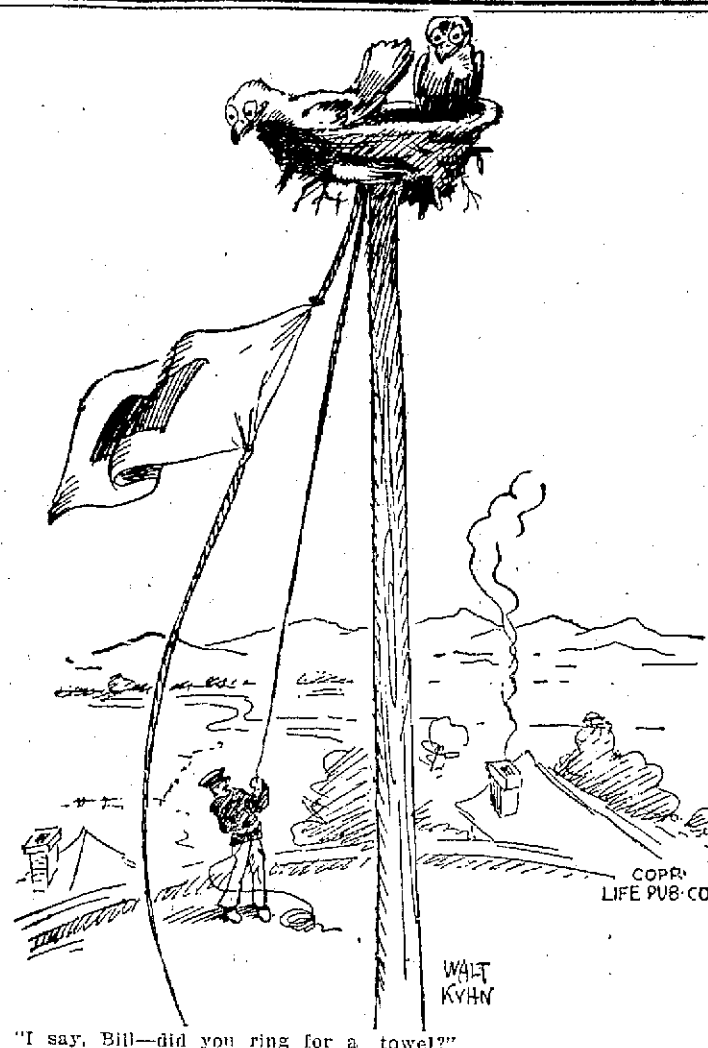

The order of the postoffice department, making the Janesville postoffice a British money order office goes into effect on Monday next. Orders will be drawn on England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales.

John Arthur Johnson, father day, within the ring of rope, you put poor Jimmie Flynn away and spoiled our latest hope. And yet your triumph was a vain one, no virtue in it lies; instead of swatting men like Flynn, why don't you swat the flies? You showed how deftly you can spell a beaming human mug, but who's the better for your toil, O self-complacent pug? You're waxing old; you should begin to do some labors wise; instead of swatting gents like Flynn, you ought to swat the flies. You slammed Flynn's head and made it sound much like a muffled drum; y o u labored and you pranced around and punched him out of plumb; you smote his larynx and his chin, you bluffed him in the eyes; but better far than swatting Flynn, it were to swat the flies. Down where Las Vegas broods and moans you cooked a young man's goose; 'I took in thirty thousand bones,' you say, as an excuse. But there are better things than gin, for which your bosom sighs; why swat a helpless cheese like Flynn, when you might swat the flies? John Arthur, quit your vain career, which makes all good men sick; cut out the Hollands and the beer and buy a swatting stick. Brace up and spring your golden grin, and win a nobler prize than is the scalp of Jimmie Flynn—go forth and swat the flies!

What Happened to Jackson.

Mr. Jackson, superintendent of the poorhouse at Portland, Ore., repainted a zinc bath with a preparation of enamel purchased in a local shop, which was warranted to dry hard. A couple of days later he took a hot bath, and while reclining comfortably in the water, went to sleep. Waking up, he found to his horror that his hair, back and legs were securely glued to the bath. He could not reach the bell; the door was locked. The only thing was to shout. The water was nearly cold by the time his cries were heard, and then the door had to be broken down. Even after that it was a most difficult and painful piece of work to pry him loose and he required a doctor's attention when finally liberated.

ALEXANDRE DUMAS

"Make haste, make haste!" said Felton. "Do you not see that every one of your words burns me like molten lead?"

"Then," continued milady, "when I saw him near me, stretching out his arms to find his victim, I struck him in the middle of his breast."

"The miserable villain! He had foreseen all! His breast was covered with a coat of mail; the knife was bent against it."

"Ah, ah!" cried he, seizing my arm and wresting from me the weapon. "You want to take my life, do you, my pretty Puritan! Come, come: calm yourself, my sweet girl! You don't love me; tomorrow you shall be free."

"I had but one wish, and that was that he should kill me."

"Beware," said I, "for my liberty is your dishonor. I will tell everything. I will denounce this palace of infamy. You are placed on high, my lord, but tremble. Above you there is the king. Above the king there is God!"

"Then you shall not leave this place," said he.

"So be it," cried I, "then the place of my punishment will be that of my tomb."

"You shall have no weapon left in your power."

"I will allow myself to die with hunger."

"Come, come," said the wretch, "is not peace much better than such a war as that? I will restore you to liberty this moment. I will proclaim you a piece of immaculate virtue."

"I will denounce you before men as I have denounced you before God!"

"Well, everything considered, you are very well off here. You shall want for nothing, and if you choose to die of hunger—why, that will be your own fault."

"At these words he retired. I heard the door open and shut, and I remained overwhelmed, still less, I confess it, by my grief than by the shame of not having avenged myself."

"He kept his word. All day, all the next night passed away without my seeing him again. I neither ate nor drank. I was, as I had told him, resolved to die of hunger."

"The second night the door opened. I was lying on the floor, for my strength began to abandon me."

"Well," said his voice, "are we softened a little? Will we not pay for our liberty with a single promise of silence? Come, take a little oath for me on the cross. I won't ask anything more of you."

"Upon the cross," cried I, rising, for at that abhorred voice I had recovered all my strength; "upon the cross! I swear to denounce you everywhere as a murderer, as a despoiler of honor, as a base coward!"

"Beware!" said the voice in a threatening accent that I had never yet heard. "I have an extraordinary means which I will employ, but in the last extremity."

"I mustered all my strength to reply to him with a burst of laughter. He saw that from that time it was war to the death between us."

"Listen," said he, "I give you the rest of the night and the day of tomorrow. Redoubt, promise to be silent, and riches, consideration, even honor shall surround you. Threaten to speak and I will condemn you to infamy."

"Oh, leave me," said I. "Begone, if you do not desire to see me dash my head against that wall before your eyes!"

"Very well; it is your own doing—till tomorrow evening then!"

Felton leaned for support upon a piece of furniture, and milady saw with joy of a demon that his strength would fall him, perhaps before the end of her recital.

CHAPTER XL

Means For Classical Tragedy.

AFTER a moment of silence, employed by milady in observing the young man who listened to her, milady continued her recital.

"It was nearly three days since I had eaten or drunk anything. I suffered frightful torments. At times there passed before me clouds which preed my brow, which veiled my eyes. This was delirium. I heard the door open. Terror recalled me to myself.

"He entered the apartment, followed by a man in a mask. He was masked likewise, but I knew him."

"Well," said he to me, "have you made your mind up to take the oath I have requested you?"

"My one word is to pursue you on earth to the tribunal of men, in heaven to the tribunal of God."

"You shall be disgraced in the eyes of the world! Try to prove to that world that you are neither guilty nor mad!"

"Then, addressing the man who accompanied him:

"Executioner," said he, "do your duty."

"Oh, his name, his name!" cried Felton. "Tell it me!"

"Then, in spite of my cries, in spite of my resistance, the executioner seized me, threw me on the floor, fastened me with his bonds. A burning fire, a red-hot iron, the iron of the executioner, was imprimed on my shoulder."

Felton uttered a groan.

"Here," said milady, rising with the majesty of a queen—here, Felton, behold my martyrdom!"

Milady, with a rapid gesture, opened her robe, tore the cambric that covered her shoulder and, red with feigned anger and simulated shame, showed the young man the ineffaceable impression which dishonored the beautiful flesh.

"But," cried Felton, "that is a fearful mark, which I see there."

"And therein consisted the infamy," replied milady. "The brand of England! It would be necessary to prove what tribunal had imposed it on me, and I could have made a public appeal to all the tribunals of the kingdom. But the brand of France! Oh, by it, by it I was really branded indeed!"

This was too much for Felton.

Pale, motionless, dazzled by the superhuman beauty of this woman, he ended by falling on his knees before her.

"Pardon, pardon!" cried Felton. "Oh, pardon!"

Milady read in his eyes love, love! She let one of those looks fall upon him which make a slave of a king. He no longer loved her—he adored her.

When milady appeared to have resumed her self-possession, which she had never lost, when Felton had seen her cover herself again—"Ah, now," said he, "I have only one thing to ask of you—that is, the name."

"What, brother?" cried milady. "Must I name him again? Have you not yet divined who he is? He who protects the Protestants today and will betray them tomorrow!"

"Buckingham it is, then, Buckingham!" cried Felton, in a high state of exasperation.

Milady concealed her face in her hands, as if she could not endure the shame which this name recalled to her.

"But he will draw down upon his head the punishment reserved for the damned!" said Felton.

"Fear him and spare him."

"I," said Felton, "I do not fear him, nor will I spare him. But how can Lord de Winter, my protector, my father, possibly be mixed up with all this?"

"Listen, Felton," resumed milady. "I had an affianced husband, a man whom I loved and who loved me, a heart like yours, Felton, a man like you. I went to him and told him all. He knew me, that man did, and did not doubt an instant. He was a nobleman, a man equal to Buckingham in every respect. He said nothing. He only gazed on his sword, enveloped himself in his cloak and went straight to Buckingham's palace."

"Buckingham had left England the day before, sent ambassador to Spain to demand the hand of the Infanta for King Charles I., who was then only Prince of Wales. My affianced husband returned."

"Hear me," said he. "This man is gone and for the moment has consequently escaped my vengeance. But let us be united, as we were to have been, and then leave it to Lord de Winter to maintain his own honor and that of his wife!"

"Lord de Winter!" cried Felton.

"Yes," said milady, "Lord de Winter. And now you can understand it all, can you not? Buckingham remained nearly a year absent. A week before his return Lord de Winter died, leaving me his sole heir. Whence came the blow? God, who knows all, knows without doubt. But as for me, I accuse nobody."

"Oh, what an abyss, what an abyss!" cried Felton.

"Lord de Winter died without revealing anything to his brother. Your protector had seen with pain this marriage of his elder brother with a por-tionless girl. I went to France with a determination to remain there for the rest of my life. But all my fortune is in England. Communication being closed by the war, I was in want of everything. I was then obliged to come back again. Six days ago I landed at Portsmouth."

"Well?" said Felton.

"Well! Buckingham heard by some means no doubt of my return. He spoke of me to Lord de Winter, already prejudiced against me, and told him that his sister-in-law was a branded woman. Lord de Winter believed all that was told him. He caused me to be arrested. You know the rest. You see, then, Felton, I can do nothing but die. Felton, give me that knife."

And at these words milady sank weak and languishing into the arms of the young officer, who received her with transport, pressed her against his heart.

"No, no," said he, "no, you shall live honored and pure. You shall live to triumph over your enemies."

"Felton, I bring misfortune to all who surround me! Felton, abandon me! Felton, let me die!"

Several strokes resounded on the door. Milady pushed him away from her.

"Hark!" said she. "We have been overheard. Some one is coming! All is over. We are lost!"

"No," said Felton; "it is only the sentinel warning me that they are about to change guard."

"Then run to the door and open it yourself."

Felton found a sergeant commanding a watch patrol.

"Well, what is the matter?" asked the young lieutenant.

"You told me to open the door if I heard any cry cry out," said the soldier, "but you forgot to leave me the key. I heard you cry out, without understanding what you said. I tried to open the door, but it was locked inside. Then I called the sergeant."

Felton, quite bewildered, almost mad, stood speechless.

Milady plainly perceived that it was now her turn to come forward. She ran to the table and, seizing the knife which Felton had laid down:

"And by what right will you prevent me from dying?" said she.

At that moment a burst of ironical laughter resounded through the corridor. The baron, attracted by the noise, in his robe de chambre, his sword under his arm, stood in the doorway.

"Ah, ha!" said he. "Here we are, arrived at the last act of the tragedy. You see, Felton, the drama has gone through all the phases I named, but be at ease, no blood will flow."

"You are mistaken, my lord; blood will flow; and may that blood fall back on those who cause it to flow!" said milady.

Felton uttered a cry and rushed toward her. He was too late; she had stabbed herself. But the knife had fortunately—we ought to say skillfully—come in contact with the steel busk, which at that period, like a cuirass, defended the chests of the women. It had glided down it, tearing the robe, and had penetrated slantingly between the flesh and the ribs.

Milady's robe was not the less stained with blood in a second.

Felton snatched away the knife.

"See, my lord," said he in a deep, gloomy tone, "here is a woman who was under my guard and who has killed herself!"

"Be at ease, Felton," said Lord de Winter; "she is not dead. Demons do not die so easily. Be at ease and go and wait for me in my chamber."

At this injunction from his superior Felton obeyed, but in going out he put the knife into his bosom.

As to Lord de Winter, he contented himself with calling the woman who waited on milady, and when she was who he recommended the prisoner, who was still fainting, to her care, and left her alone with her.

But as, all things considered, notwithstanding his suspicions, the wound might be serious, he immediately sent off a man and horse to fetch a doctor.

CHAPTER XL

Escape.

A Lord de Winter had thought, milady's wound was not dangerous. It was, however, necessary to affect weakness and pain, not a very difficult task for so finished an actress as milady.

The presence of her attendant did not prevent milady from thinking. There was no longer a doubt that Felton was convinced—Felton was hers. But Lord de Winter might have suspected him. Felton himself might now be watched.

Toward 4 o'clock in the morning the doctor arrived. He satisfied himself that the case was not serious. In the morning milady, under the pretense of not having slept well in the night and wanting rest, sent away the woman. She had only one day left. Lord de Winter had announced her embarkation for the 23d, and it was now the morning of the 23d.

Although she had eaten nothing in the morning, the dinner was brought in at its usual time. Milady then perceived with terror that the uniform of the soldier that guarded her was changed. Then she ventured to ask what had become of Felton. She was told that he had left the castle an hour before on horseback. She inquired if the baron was still at the castle. The soldier replied that he was and that he had given orders to be informed if the prisoner wished to speak to him.

At 6 o'clock Lord de Winter came in. He was armed at all points.

Swearing a Remedy.
Science runs to simple remedies these days. Since Matchnikoff discovered the fountain of perpetual youth in a bottle of buttermilk all who will may be centenarians. To rid a community of yellow fever it is only necessary to kill enough mosquitoes, and in nine cases out of ten probably tuberculosis can be cured by the cheap open-air treatment. The discovery of a London doctor that swearing is helpful to health is in line with the up-to-date medical methods.—New York World.

Hope to Find Buried Treasure.

Enthusied by the finding of several Spanish coins along the beach at Fenwick Island, farmers from all over that section of Delaware are neglecting their farms to dig for buried treasure, of which the coins are supposed to be a part. The excitement was started by the picking up of several Spanish coins, most of them dated around 1782. The rumor of the find spread through the country, and since then the old story of the wreck of several Spanish vessels on the Fenwick beach has been revived.

Dr. C. H. Ellsworth, Dentist, 16 Baldwin St., Rochester, N. Y., says: "Foley Kidney Pills gave me immediate relief and strengthened me wonderfully. For some time past I have been bothered with weak kidneys and bladder trouble. Irregular action, pain, and dizzy spells all troubled me. Foley Kidney Pills gave me immediate relief and strengthened me wonderfully. I am pleased to recommend their use." Foley Kidney Pills are specially prepared for kidney and bladder ailments, and are always effective for rheumatism, backache, weak back and lumbago. Badger Drug Co.

The Home Beautiful

DESIGN NO. 60

This Bungalow of Swiss design is well adapted to a terraced lot where the house stands high above the street; it has the appearance of solidity possessed by few designs, and when we consider the convenience of its arrangements, we immediately conclude it has no superiors and few equals. The rooms are large and many items of expense are cut out in order to cheapen its construction, the only exception being the Brick Mantel and seats in the living room, the Buffet in the Dining Room, and the cupboard and work-table in the kitchen, the remainder of the house being very conservative.

There are three rooms, Alcove and Bath Room on the second floor, each room having a large closet. They are carefully planned with a view of placing the furniture.

The Front Porch is somewhat peculiar with its huge columns and absence of hand rail at the option of the owner.

With oak finish on first floor except kitchen and Yellow Pine throughout the remainder of the house, the cost to complete would be approximately $3200.00, which includes, plumbing, heating, and lighting and all the materials and workmanship first-class. Width 36 feet, length 26 feet 6 inches.
